Vanguard of 1942 AEF Landed Safely Amid Grateful Cheers in North Ireland

Big Naval, Air Battle Results in Greatest Victory Since Dewey

'Yanks Are Here Again,' British Press Chortles

Several Thousand Troops Cross Without Loss of Single Man.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
PORT IN NORTHERN IRELAND, Jan. 26.—The vanguard of 1942's AEF, several thousand strong, landed today in this port less than three weeks after President Roosevelt announced they were coming.

"The Yanks Are Here Again!" said British headlines tonight.

Part of an infantry division with an artillery complement, the troops were said to include men from all parts of the United States. Wearing tin hats and packing full kits, the men trooped ashore to the strains of "America," played by a band, and were greeted by the cheers of a throng waiting at a red, white and blue bedecked dock shed.

The British Press Association said the convoy was escorted across the submarine-infested Atlantic by units of both the United States and British navies. Not a life was lost in transit.

"Rarin' to Go."

As the swelling olive-drab ranks poured ashore, their officers declared, their men were "all pepped up and rarin' to go."

They stepped on the soil of the Old World, in the second adventure of an AEF in a quarter of a century, less than two months after Germany and Italy had declared themselves at war with the United States.

The band crashed into "Marching Through Georgia" as the American units wheeled and marched through the city. The Stars and Stripes were flying out in front, and the slight difference in uniforms—especially the distinguishing gaiters—brought townsmen swarming to the curbstones to watch the Yanks.

Windows flew up and Irish colleens hung out to shout, "Hi-yah, boys!"

"They are handsome lads, all right," some remarked.

"Your safe arrival marks a new stage in the World War, and a gloomy portent for Hitler. Nor will its significance be lost on General Tojo," declared Sir Archibald Sinclair, British air minister, in a welcoming speech.

"You are impressive examples of American military might," Sir Archibald told the troops.

"Here, boys, you will join with us in withstanding assaults by our common enemy on this island. From here, assuredly, you will sally forth with us to carry the war into his territory and free the oppressed people of Europe."

"You have come many thousands of miles across land and sea to these islands—not to sojourn among strangers but to find yourselves among friends who are grateful for your presence, and among comrades of the British fighting services who know the grapple of American soldiers."

The prompt arrival of this first

ON OLD WORLD SOIL—This sea of faces shows a part of the United States troops which landed yesterday in North Ireland as the vanguard of the American Expeditionary Force of the Second World War. The men received a hospitable and ardent welcome, although the fact that the convoy was kept secret prevented gathering of a large crowd at the Old World port. First question asked by the several thousand American soldiers was "When do we eat?" and first activity ashore was serving of a bounteous meal.

Total of 33 Other Nipponese Craft Listed as Sunk or Damaged by United Action.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The greatest American victory at sea since Dewey sank the Spanish fleet in Manila bay 40-odd years ago still was being extended tonight, with the strong aid of the Dutch allies, against a Japanese invading fleet in the Macassar strait on the water approaches to Java in the Dutch East Indies.

Already, it was the greatest defeat yet suffered in the Pacific war by the Japanese enemy—a defeat more than overbalancing his slow, continued progress down the Malay peninsula upon Singapore and the rising menace of his incursions upon the outer islands of Australia's defense chain.

The still unfolding story of the Battle of Macassar, which lies between Borneo and Celebes and leads down to the head and center of the Allied war effort and the site of Supreme Allied Headquarters on Java—disclosed that scores of Japanese transports and warships had been sunk or damaged by strong and co-ordinated American and Dutch naval action and that uncounted thousands of enemy troops had been flung to death in the strait.

33 Vessels Blasted.
By late in the day, at least 28 Japanese vessels were known to have fallen victim to this heavy and concentrated Allied fire and all the available information had indicated the fact that the number was no less than 33.

Then the U. S. Navy announced that in continuing action a Japanese aircraft carrier was torpedoed and believed sunk by an American submarine and that heavy hits had been scored by American forces on an unestimated number of additional enemy destroyers and transports.

American forces in co-operation with Dutch comrades have positively destroyed 11 other vessels, latest reports disclosed tonight.

Moreover, 22 other Jap vessels have been heavily battered and some of them probably destroyed since the great engagement began last Friday in Macassar Strait, gateway to the heart of the fabulously wealthy Indies.

The hammer blows were delivered by cruisers, destroyers and submarines of Admiral Thomas C. Hart's Asiatic fleet, and by Army flying fortresses.

All the circumstances—the extraordinary size of the Japanese invasion train and the tremendous losses it already had suffered—clearly indicated that this now broken maneuver was the enemy's strongest single thrust by sea since he leapt upon the Philippines and Malaya.

The Navy report did not specifically identify the blasted carrier as to type but officials here expressed belief that it was one of the regular fleet carriers.

The Japanese, according to latest available information here, had eight aircraft carriers built and two under construction last October. They range from 7,100 to 26,900 tons, and the largest can carry 50 to 60 planes.

"While it is still impossible to estimate total damage inflicted by our combat vessels," the Navy communique said, "the known results are substantial."

Further, the communique reported that a second motor torpedo boat raid into Subic bay along the Japanese-held shore of the Philippine islands, had resulted in the sinking of a 5,000-ton enemy vessel.

The first torpedo boat raid against Japanese naval units there was reported last week and likewise cost the enemy a 5,000-ton ship.

Bulkeley Along.

Ensign George Cqx, of Watertown, N. Y., commanded the torpedo boat which sank the Japanese vessel. Other officers on the raid were Lieutenant (J. G.) Edward G. DeLong, squadron engineer, of Springfield, S. D., and Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley, motor torpedo boat squadron commander, who led the first raid into Subic bay.

The sinkings of the carrier and the 5,000-ton vessel in Subic bay were described by Navy authorities as additional to all sinkings previously announced and raised to 52 the total of Japanese ship losses of all types by American action since the war started—assuming the aircraft carrier sank.

Northward in the Philippines, the Japanese invaders licked their wounds after the smashing setback which General Douglas MacArthur's forces gave them the previous day by a strategic counter-attack against their left wing. The War Department communique today which told of the Flying Fortresses' successes said the "fighting on Batan peninsula was confined to relatively unimportant skirmishes on the west coast and in the vicinity of Subic bay."

Thus MacArthur had a quiet day to celebrate his 62d birthday. President Roosevelt sent greetings and praise and the anniversary occasioned high tributes to the commander's prowess in both houses of congress.

The total of 11 ships definitely sunk was pieced together from communique issued here and at the United Nations' headquarters

Wartime Price Control Bill Passed by House

All Americas Adopt 'The Atlantic Charter'

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Nations of the western hemisphere declared the United States and its American allies nonbelligerents tonight, and claimed as their own peace aims those of the United States as expressed in the Atlantic Charter.

The stand, taken by the political committee of the Pan-American Conference, went further to state that "special facilities may be conceded to those countries that in this emergency contribute, in the judgment of each government, to the defense interests of this hemisphere."

This action and the earlier unanimously adopted resolution recommending severance of relations with the Axis prompted U. S. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles to declare tonight that the conference more than accomplished its objectives.

Besides the United States, the

Dies Promises Probe in States Having Klans

Proposal Made After Colecott Appears Before Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—"A thorough investigation in every state where the Ku Klux Klan is operating" was promised today by Chairman Dies, Democrat, Texas, when he asked the house to continue until January 3, 1943, the life of his committee investigating un-American activities.

Announcement of the projected Klan investigation was made by Dies after the committee had heard behind closed doors testimony from J. A. Colecott, of Atlanta, described by Dies as imperial wizard of the Klan, who appeared voluntarily.

"As a result of today's hearings," Dies said, "the committee has decided to make a thorough investigation in every state where the Ku Klux Klan is operating. That is all I can say now." He said Colecott presented records of the Ku Klux Klan and promised cooperation.

Dies said he would request approximately $100,000 to finance the committee's work.

Sheriff Aldredge Dies at Age of 56

Sheriff J. C. "Mott" Aldredge, of Fulton county, died early last night at Piedmont hospital of a kidney ailment, after an illness of only three days. He was 56.

Sheriff Aldredge was at his office Friday, apparently in the best of health. He was taken ill at his home that night and did not work Saturday. He was taken to the hospital Sunday.

Aldredge was elected sheriff in March, 1938, defeating James D. Bazemore to fill the unexpired term of the late Sheriff James I. Lowry. He was re-elected for a full term in 1940.

Background of Nickname.
Sheriff Aldredge was a big, jovial man known by the nickname of "Mott" not only by thousands of Atlantans, but by other thousands over the state whom he had met during 30 years' service with the Atlanta division of the Southern Railway System.

His nickname was the result of a joke that a legislator named Mott who, coming to Atlanta for the first time, nearly asphyxiated himself by blowing out the gas light in his room.

Whenever a friend pulled a "Mott," Aldredge called him "Mott." Later friends turned the table and began calling him "Mott." The name stuck.

When elected sheriff in 1938

50 Telephone Calls Bring Him Good News

If you want something accomplished, for any old reason at all, it's good news to find out that someone is willing to co-operate with you, isn't it?

A certain Atlanta man had 50 calls offering that sort of co-operation just a few days ago. He had a small piece of investment property he wanted to turn into cash. One day he had 50 calls from people who wanted to help out, or were at least interested—and one of his callers bought the property.

Coincidence? Not at all. He simply announced his intentions in a Want Ad in The Constitution.

Sent to Senate After Balking Delay Effort

Reports F. D. R. Will Veto Act Said Un- founded.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—After a three-hour attack by Republicans and a few Democrats the wartime price control bill was approved finally by the house today and sent to the senate, where speedy action was forecast.

A powerful coalition led by Representative Wolcott, Republican, Michigan, came within 20 votes of sending the controversial measure—compromised between original senate and house bills—back to conference with instructions to revise it. The coalition wanted to knock out a system of business licenses designed to enforce price control and also believed a board of review should be set up to pass on price ceilings that might be fixed.

But, after Democratic Leader McCormack, of Massachusetts, had asserted that those and other Republican-sponsored objections were unnecessary or meaningless, the house defeated Wolcott's attempts on a roll call vote, 209 to 189. Then members went on to pass the legislation on another roll call, 288 to 112.

McCormack took occasion during the animated debate to say that reports that the President might veto the bill were unfounded, but he did say he believed that additional legislation might have to be passed "to correct some of the defects of the present bill."

The legislation, first requested by President Roosevelt last July, would give a price administrator, who presumably will be Leon Henderson, authority to fix ceilings on prices in his discretion, as well as rents in defense areas. Licenses could be required for the conduct of almost any business. If provisions of a license were violated, the offending party would

Kelly Scored Hits At 23,000 Feet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The late Captain Colin P. Kelly Jr. and his bomber crew demonstrated the remarkable efficiency of a secret American bombsight, according to testimony reported to have been given to a senate appropriations subcommittee today.

Major General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, was said to have told the committee that Kelly and his men scored a direct bomb hit on the Japanese battleship Haruna from an altitude of approximately 23,000 feet. Members of congress said they were amazed that such accuracy could be achieved from that height.

Ex-Atlantan Accompanies Second AEF on Blackout Voyage

Navy Upholds Record of No Convoys Lost

U. S. and British Craft Escorted Transports in U-Boat Seas.

Now the American Expeditionary Force that was landed in North Ireland Monday was transported across the perilous North Atlantic without the slightest casualty or damage is revealed here in the first eyewitness account of the voyage, written by a former Atlantan who accompanied the troops as correspondent from the shores of America to the United Kingdom.

By ROBERT G. NIXON. WITH THE AEF IN NORTH-ERN IRELAND, Jan. 26.—(INS) Now that the vanguard contingents of the new AEF are safely ashore and distributed among their stations in Northern Ireland, I am able to disclose that the United States Navy retained unblemished its tradition of the first World War when it "never lost a transport."

The entire movement was accomplished without the loss or injury of a single doughboy. For nearly a fortnight I lived, spoke and drilled on shipboard with America's new fighting AEF and had engraved in my mind the battery of these soldiers in this war: "We're coming back to finish the job."

Through Infested Waters. Powerful, combined American and British naval and air escorts brought the transports safely through the waters of the North Atlantic infested with U-boats. The commander of the convoy told me:

"We are strong enough to blow out of the water anything Hitler could put to sea."

Throughout the trans-Atlantic journey our ships were completely blacked out.

The whole convoy was under wartime regulations. All the troops wore lifebelts 24 hours a day and slept in full battle equipment.

Baths Were Taboo. We were forbidden even to take a bath.

The transports were jammed to capacity with troops and equipment.

The assembling of the expeditionary force and its dispatch overseas were carried out amid the most intensive secrecy, not until we were well at sea did our destination become known even to commanders of our troop units.

Down to the most minute detail, all preparations had been thoroughly made for the welfare and safety of the soldiers sent into the European theater of the world-wide war.

Accompanying the troops was a complete medical unit, including a group of pretty nurses from Fort Knox, Ky., and Fort Harrison, Ind.

YANKS "OVER THERE"—Here is the first picture to reach Atlanta showing landing in Ireland yesterday of the vanguard troops of the 1942 AEF. Two United States doughboys are shaking hands with a British sergeant. Newspapers throughout the isles gleefully and gratefully announced: "The Yanks are here again." The troops were convoyed across the Atlantic without loss of a man. They arrived in less than three weeks after F. D. R. announced they would be sent, and in less than two months after America entered the war.

contingent of United States Army combat troops, in striking contrast to the tardy arrival of their counterpart of the first AEF nearly a quarter of a century before, greatly impressed the British.

A possible subsidiary effect of this landing was to show the De Valera government of Eire that the Allies would bring ample strength to defend them and Eire itself.

Major General Russell P. Hartle, the commanding officer of the disembarking troops, stepped ashore first and was warmly welcomed by British officials and British and United States Army officers.

The British Press Association's account of the landing, as passed by the British censor, said: "Several thousand men of an American infantry division landed at a Northern Ireland port. They are combat troops with the usual components of field artillery."

Exact Number Withheld. Military censors prevented identification of the units in the new American Expeditionary Force or publication of their exact numbers.

The ships steamed slowly into this port as a large group of American and British Army officers and journalists stood waiting, straining their eyes to catch the first glimpse of the Yanks lined against the deck railings.

The soldiers, too, were eager for a glimpse of their new area of operations. They were sticking their heads out of every opening. Just before they reached the docks, the band struck up "Star-Spangled Banner" and a waiting throng gave three cheers.

Mixed emotions were apparent on the faces of the troops, who wore steel campaign helmets and full campaign packs.

Some of them flipped hesitant handwaves as the convoy neared the docks.

Several men quickly saluted the AEF CHIEF—Major General Russell P. Hartle was in command of the first AEF of World War II which has landed in northern Ireland, less than two months after the United States declared war.

American flag which flew from a staff on the docks. The British Union Jack flew from a similar staff a few feet away.

Guarded by Planes. British warplanes shepherded the Americans into port and maintained a ceaseless guard until the last few thousands were safely ashore and en route to their several camps.

Locations of the camps was a military secret, but authorities indicated the troops were housed in buildings erected for them by the American civilian technicians who have been working here for about eight months under the lend-lease act.

The sturdy, insulated huts were erected of prefabricated parts brought from the United States.

At sea British fliers picked up the American convoy and their American-made planes were virtually the first familiar sight the soldiers had seen since they left home.

Breaks Rules. One of the fliers, however, broke the rules of recognition by approaching from out of the sun and escorting gunners sent up anti-aircraft fire. Their shots missed, however, and the plane soon identified itself.

Friendly land was now in sight and just before sundown and with the harbor only a few score miles away, the commander of the convoy signalled the United States

Commodore and troop commanders:

"May I say how honored we are to have been able to escort you over here? The very best of luck and hope you will take after my ship's name. Attention is drawn to Acts Chapter 27, Verse 22."

The quotation is "And now I exhort you to be of good cheer. For there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, but only of the ship."

Immediately after announcing the arrival of the troops the British Broadcasting Company noted tonight that there had been "slight enemy air activity" over Northern Ireland, but that there had been no damage or casualties.

The BBC tonight gave the general British public its first news of the arrival of American troops.

Only a few officials and journalists with inside sources of information knew that they were even expected within so short a time after President Roosevelt's announcement on January 6 that they would be sent. That announcement was in the President's "state of the union" message to congress.

Jap Aircraft Carrier Hit by U.S. Torpedo

in Java. They were: Seven destroyed by the guns and torpedoes of American warships, two transports by the American bombing planes, one destroyer by a Dutch submarine and another ship by Dutch bombers. The Americans and Dutch also accounted for the heavy hits on other enemy craft—transports and the cruisers and destroyers escorting them.

Through this thundering engagement, the first large-scale deployment of the war thus far, the United States forces lost not a single ship or plane. Twelve enemy fighting planes attacked the bombers, and five of the 12 were shot down.

Reinforcements Hinted. Behind the terse official communiqués, which furnished an eager people its only news of the victory so far, lay indications that not only the original Japanese convoy, but possibly reinforcements rushed vainly to its rescue, had been partially destroyed.

The action opened Friday when Dutch warplanes assaulted the convoy. Then American destroyers entered the action and a Navy communiqué Saturday told of their attacking Japanese transports and destroyers. On Sunday the Navy told of United States cruisers joining the battle. And today communiqués for the first time mentioned Japanese cruisers as being bombed by the warplanes.

The sequence appeared to indicate that the cruisers of both sides had not been on hand at the start of the fighting, that those of Admiral Hart's were rushed into action when the Japs proved to have no mastery of the air, and that the Japanese then desperately sent their own cruisers to the scene in a fruitless attempt to turn the tide of the battle.

Dispatches from Batavia, Dutch East Indies, said during the day that the known successes thus far were divided at a ratio of about two for American and Dutch bombers to one for a dogged group of destroyers and cruisers of the fleet of Admiral Hart. This dispatch did not include the sinking of the aircraft carrier.

Thousands of Japanese lives were believed to have been lost in the tremendous series of forays by United Nations' craft, but no exact estimate was yet available.

Dublin Livestock Brings $10,584
Special to THE CONSTITUTION. DUBLIN, Ga., Jan. 26.—Cattle prices continued to increase at last week's livestock auction sales here, and all types were in good demand.

Total sales of cattle and hogs amounted to $10,584.27, according to figures announced by M. E. Cochran, sales manager.

Four German planes attempting to raid Moscow were declared shot down and Sunday's bag along the front was listed at 20 German craft against five losses to the Red air force.

Recapitulating last week's aerial losses, a communiqué supplement said 128 German planes were destroyed, 78 of them in air battles, 14 by anti-aircraft fire and 34 on the ground.

In this period the Russians gave their losses as 41 planes.

Japs Thunder 'At Very Gates Of Australia'

Civilians Abandon More Islands in Chain of Defenses.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Japan hurled more troops against Australia's vast island defense chain tonight as authorities removed civilians from threatened cities and Prime Minister John Curtin warned that "the enemy thunders at our very gates."

Australian militiamen fighting in the hills south of Japanese-occupied Rabaul, capital of New Britain island, were reported to have repulsed 11 Japanese attacks in two days despite their inexperience and numerical inferiority. Japanese forces there were estimated to number at least 10,000.

Australian defense units also apparently were in action on the neighboring island of New Ireland in the Bismarck archipelago, 800 miles off the mainland, and on Bougainville in the Solomon group to the east. The Japanese had landed at Kavieng in New Ireland and at Kieta on Bougainville.

Prime Minister Curtin told his people in a nation-wide broadcast that negotiations were underway to gain a place for Australia on the Pacific war staff of General Sir Archibald P. Wavell.

Civilians abandoned Tulagi on Florida island south of Bougainville in the Solomons, and also Madang and Lae on New Guinea, which lies 400 miles west of New Britain. All three cities have been bombed intermittently by the Japanese, and the coastal town of Wewak, northwest of Madang, was reported under Japanese aerial attack today.

Manpower Mobilization Board Sought

Proposal To Unify Labor Efforts Made by McNutt.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Creation of a manpower mobilization board, with far-reaching powers to say where and how men and women should work during the war has been proposed to President Roosevelt by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, it was learned today.

The proposal, assailed by some union leaders as a plan to conscript workers, was said to be under study by the cabinet.

As outlined in a memorandum prepared by the security administration, the proposal calls for a board of seven authorized to fix policies concerning labor controls, compulsory registration and transfers.

The board would be composed of Secretary of War Stimson; Secretary of the Navy Knox; Secretary of Labor Perkins; McNutt; Sidney Hillman, director of the labor division of the War Production Board; a member of the Civil Service Commission and the director of the Office of Civilian Defense.

The memo pointed out that there were six federal agencies engaged in recruiting man-power—the Army, Navy, Selective Service, Civil Service Commission, Office of Civilian Defense and the employment service—and added that if these agencies were not to work at cross purposes a mutual agreement as to policy should be worked out.

New AEF, Although Unannounced, Given Ardent Welcome

By INEZ ROBB.

A PORT IN NORTHERN IRELAND, Jan. 26.—(INS)—From the transports that carried them safely across the submarine-infested Atlantic, several thousand American youths in khaki filed down the gangplanks to line up along the pierside here today. They received a welcome that was ardent but not uproarious.

There were no wild cheers or noisy tooting of steamboat whistles since there had been no advance announcement that the American troops were about to land.

Under an overcast winter sky typical of Northern Ireland, the group of United States transports steamed slowly to the pier. The soldiers were lined up at the rails of their ships—a picture reminiscent of the World War I—and some of them waved to a crowd on the dock.

Something Was Happening.
The crowd—except for an official Anglo-American welcoming party—was composed of several hundred waterfront workers who, despite the secrecy, had sensed that something was happening and had gathered at the quayside.

As the first shipload of America's fighting men nudged its way close to the quay, a military band of the Royal Ulster Rifles regiment struck up "God Save the King"—familiar to American ears because it is the same tune as "America."

The "Star Spangled Banner" was solemnly rendered by the British band as the first of the Americans set foot on the pier.

Lined up on the quay were British and American dignitaries and Army officers who had come to bid formal welcome to the soldiers from the U. S. A.

As though nature, too, were playing her part in this drama, the sun broke through the mist as the American transports were berthed and the gangplanks wheeled into place by British Tommies.

"Scrappy" Hartle.
A British Army officer stepped forward and grasped the hand of Major General R. P. (Scrappy) Hartle, one of the youngest officers of that rank in the United States Army, who commands the AEF's advance contingent.

The honor of being the first to set foot on United Kingdom soil went to 23-year-old First Class Private Milburn Henke, of Hutchinson, Minn.

A garland was slung across Private Henke's shoulders as he stepped off the gangplank. Swarming cameramen began snapping his picture and radio broadcasters pushed microphones in front of his blushing face.

Young Henke for a few brief moments held the limelight as he told reporters that his father was German-born and his mother of German descent, that he enlisted in the American Army 16 months ago, leaving his job in his father's restaurant.

National Anthem.
The flurry over the "first Yank ashore" soon died down as General Hartle stepped onto the dock amid the strains of America's National Anthem. It was an awe-inspiring spectacle as British and American officers on the pier and American soldiers on the ships stood in respectful salute.

Then came the first spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm as the British Tommies ashore broke out with typical "hip-hip-hoorays."

The ice of formality was broken. After Hartle was introduced to all dignitaries, British Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair, representing the Churchill cabinet, made a brief address of welcome.

Among those in the official welcoming group were Premier Andrews of Northern Ireland and the Duke of Abercorn.

Troops File Ashore.
Once Hartle and his staff officers completed their hand-shaking, the American troops started filing ashore en masse, each soldier toting a blue duffle bag, a short pack and a rifle or other weapon.

The Tommies lent a helping hand, taking the Americans' duffelbags and tossing them aboard waiting trucks. One young American soldier was worried over his guitar, fearing it might be crushed under the duffelbags.

After the AEF boys were relieved of their baggage, they were

AEF Is Seen As Spearhead Against Nazis

Final Training Will Be Under Wartime Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The expeditionary force of several thousand American soldiers who landed in Northern Ireland today may form a spearhead of the ultimate assault upon the inner stronghold of Hitlerism.

Only the bare announcement of their safe arrival was made by Secretary of War Stimson in the official communique, which named Major General Russell P. Hartle as the commander, but several considerations arose in unofficial speculation.

Foremost was the fact that these troops now can undergo final training under actual wartime conditions and doubtless will be in the forefront of American forces when the time comes for an invasion of German-dominated Europe.

Meanwhile, in addition to the lift their presence gives to the British and the people of the occupied countries, they will be available to garrison Northern Ireland against a Nazi invasion and to guard a vital supply line.

Northern Ireland, with its great port and industrial center of Belfast, lies strategically near the British terminus of the lend-lease route. It now becomes the easternmost of the chain of outposts garrisoned by Americans along the north Atlantic shipping route to England.

On the political side, the people of Eire, traditionally friendly with the United States, could be expected to look on the presence of American troops in the four northern counties with considerably more tolerance, if not favor, than they would accord to a sizable British force there.

lined up inside the wharfshed where roll was called.

The youngsters among them were all plainly thrilled at the prospect of action in lands far from home. But their elders, particularly officers and non-commissioned officers, took the memorable event in stride.

One Set of Brothers.

The contingent has only one set of brothers, Privates Jack and Kirby Babcock. They were just two human parcels of excitement. Jack revealed that he and his brother come from Iowa but added:

"I can't tell you the exact town. That's liable to give information to the enemy."

Kirby was asked whether there was any incident during the North Atlantic voyage worth relating.

"Yep," he shot back, "I won 38 bucks in a poker game."

Probably the sprightliest group was a regimental color guard consisting of Technical Sergeants Lew Conway, Paul Springer, James M. Cartwright and Harold Christensen. They just overflowed with questions about food in Britain, English money, the "blitz," etc.

Christensen somewhat hesitatingly tendered a question about the liquor situation in Britain. The answer seemed to satisfy him that there was enough to go around, at least for awhile.

It was well into the early afternoon before the disembarkation had been finished. Many of the lads hadn't eaten since breakfast before dawn.

Important Item.
But the important item of an American soldier's "grub" hadn't been overlooked by the British authorities. Soon every man's messkit was well-laden with lunch consisting of soup, braised beef, creamed peas, potatoes, rice pudding, raisin pie and coffee.

No one can accuse a doughboy of "eating like a bird." In fact, it didn't take long for these boys to annihilate their grub.

Then, they were again lined up as the American officers snapped their commands. Led by the Ulster Rifles and playing the "Stars and Stripes" and guided by British officers, the troops marched off to a semi-permanent camp prepared in advance by American civilian workers. This camp is abundantly stocked with American food.

The whole event unfolded efficiently, promptly and without ostentation.

The sole decorations on the dock were a few naval signal flags, a Union Jack and one American flag.

But it certainly gave American correspondents a warm thrill to see Old Glory unfurled into the Irish breeze as the American doughboys marched smartly from the pier.

We've turned in a high-piled stack of Civilian Defense Registration Cards filled out with Davison employees' all-out enlistment for Uncle Sam. That's our answer to our President's challenge. Long before we had facilities for Civilian Defense registration our Store Family was champing at the bit in a clamorous, "What Can We Do?" chorus. It has been an inspiring sight to witness the wholehearted enthusiasm of every last man and woman in our store. Of Mrs. Dacus, of the Notions, known and loved by most of Atlanta, signing up to be an Air Raid Warden in her neighborhood. Of men and women cheerfully giving up their afternoons off to Red Cross work. Of girls hurrying through their lunch hours to knit for the soldiers. Of Robert, our porter, proudly wearing a "Defense Stamp" arm-band and selling stamps to the maids and elevator boys and porters every day. Of our executives climbing ladders and practicing Auxiliary Fireman duties in the evenings. Of a group of young women signing up for Sunday afternoons at the Red Cross "because scarcely anybody else wants to work then." Yes, Sir-ree, Uncle Sam. We're right in there with you, up to our ears. Before hours, after hours, lunch hours. With all of our strength, all of our energy, all of our fighting spirit. We're your Davison Army . . . United for Victory . . . for America!

GO MODERN! GO SEABOARD!

South Gearing To Meet War's New Food Quota

Secretary Wickard To Ask All-Out Effort in Talk Here.

Southern agriculture meeting a wartime food-production job will swing into high gear tomorrow when Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard comes to Atlanta to call for all-out food and feed farming.

Secretary Wickard's address, to be delivered at 12:30 o'clock, will be broadcast during National Farm and Home Hour over a nationwide hookup.

The secretary will address members of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's State War Boards from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Also attending the conference will be representatives of other agricultural agencies, and approximately 500 Georgia farmers and county War Board chairmen.

Chief business before the conference will be consideration of the state-by-state breakdown of new national food production goals, made necessary by the United States entry into the war. Goals first were set in September, broken down into state and county, and finally into individual farm goals. Virtually every farmer was contacted and prepared a 1942 plan sheet which indicated his anticipated contribution to the over-all goal.

Food for Victory goals have been expanded greatly since American entry into the war, with the vital oils of peanuts and soybeans most in demand. Increases of 255 per cent in peanut production and 152 per cent in the case of soybeans are being asked under the enlarged program.

Georgia's peanut acreage, which stood at 561,000 in 1941, was set at 1,137,000 acres in the initial Food for Victory call, and now is expected to be advanced about 400,000 more acres for 1942.

Problems related to seed, cultivating and harvesting machinery, labor, and marketing of peanuts and other Food for Victory crops will highlight the program of tomorrow's conference, prior to Secretary Wickard's address.

The conference is scheduled to open at 9 o'clock.

Inmates Here Called 'Defense Workers' Now

It is now "defense worker," and not "convict" or "inmate," at the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

The lead editorial in the current issue of The Atlantic, prison publication, points out that "for years prison administrators have tried to find a synonym for the word convict."

Then came the attack on Pearl Harbor. Prisoners realized their importance in the battle of production, and their participation in the war effort as loyal Americans.

So now, it's "defense worker."

South To Feel Effects of New Bomber Plant

Company, Cobb County Officials Prepare To Sign Contract.

By FRANK DRAKE.
The economic effects of establishment of the $15,000,000 Bell Aircraft Corporation bomber plant near Marietta will be felt throughout the state and southeastern section, it was asserted yesterday as company representative and Cobb county officials prepared to sign contracts for construction of the huge assembly plant at the Marietta airport.

A list of 153 shops with machine facilities for manufacture of parts for the new-type bomber already has been submitted to the Bell company and within a few weeks a corps of subcontracting specialists from the Bell company are expected here to arrange for sub-contracts.

Shops in 35 Cities.
The shops which quickly can be converted to production of parts for the bombers are located in at least 35 different Georgia cities, including Atlanta.

Meanwhile, William J. O'Connor, counsel for the Bell Aircraft Corporation, and the Atlanta law firm of Alston, Foster, Sibley & Miller, flanked by Atlanta Chamber of Commerce representatives, went about the business of signing land contracts with Cobb county officials.

Cobb county is to deed the new airport to the company when land for the 800-foot by 2,500-foot assembly plant is acquired.

Leaders were confident yesterday the Navy Department would not make further attempts to take over the field, as was threatened Saturday and at the same time Fulton county moved to provide the Naval Reserve Aviation base here with two additional fields for training the enlarged number of cadets.

Commissioners' Action.
At the request of Commander D. Ward Harrigan, the commissioners voted to buy or condemn a 100-acre tract on Hemlock road and another of 63 acres on County Line road, and also renewed the county's option on 129 acres near Fairburn.

Work already has started on the United States Naval Reserve aviation base at Camp Gordon to accommodate more officers, more students, and more enlisted men was announced yesterday by the event of the Bell plant did not go to Marietta.

The commissioners announced that the county will lease the Hemlock road and County Line road tracts to the Navy for $1 a year each, and said they understood the government with WPA labor will develop them into airports suitable for the training of the naval cadets.

Larry Bell, president of the Bell Aircraft Corporation, of Buffalo, N. Y., is scheduled to come to Atlanta soon to consider the arrangements for the new plant to be built here within the next year.

Arrangements Settled.
O'Connor has stated that all arrangements between the company and Cobb county have been settled, but signing of contracts remained. He is submitting plans today in Dayton, Ohio, to Air Corps officers for approval.

The Atlanta and Marietta leaders were considering the stupendous problems that coming of the big assembly plant will present—housing for the 40,000 workers and their families, water mains, retooling Georgia machine shops for making airplane parts, transportation facilities, etc.

As for retooling, the announcement that the Bell company will build here and employ 40,000 workers still was so new, with so few technical details, that owners and operators of the machine facilities are not able to say what they can do.

In tooling, as in housing, nothing definite could be said until the actual requirements are known.

Home Making.
O'Connor said 1,000 new houses will be needed immediately, and others declared that several thousand additional houses will be necessary to care for the influx of families. Already, a committee headed by Collins, of the First National Bank of Marietta, is considering the problem of private financing of as many of the needed houses as possible.

Collins' committee probably will make a report within the next week or so, Cobb County Commissioner George McMillan said.

Car Plants in Dark.
Officials of the three plants here, Fisher, Chevrolet and Ford, said they had not been informed of the plan for changing their factories into producers of airplane parts, but one official declared "We certainly hope its true."

He added that his plant will shut down entirely in the early days of February under the government ban on making new cars.

The 153 machine shops in Georgia which can make bomber parts employ from three to several hundred men, and virtually all of them can be quickly enlarged if materials can be obtained, it was said.

Besides Atlanta, these shops are located at Savannah, Brunswick, Fort Valley, Rome, Macon, Athens, Augusta, Columbus, Newnan, Tate, Cordele, Hampton, Clayton, Tooele, Bainbridge, Cedartown, East Point, Hoschton, Yatesville, Tifton, McDonough, West Point, Cartersville, Chatsworth, Dalton, Dawson, Marietta, Woodbury, Thomaston, Moultrie, Douglasville, Quitman and LaGrange.

STAMP SALES BRISK.
ROME, Ga., Jan. 26.—Postmaster W. E. Wimberly reports that over 4,000 U. S. auto tax stamps have already been sold at the Rome postoffice, and heavy sales are expected this week. There are approximately 12,000 motor vehicles in Floyd county, according to unofficial estimates.

Big Expansion At Naval Field Is Under Way

Seven Main Buildings Being Constructed at Camp Gordon.

As a part of the nation-wide program to step up naval aviation for the all-out effort, expansion of the United States Naval Reserve aviation base at Camp Gordon to accommodate more officers, more students, and more enlisted men was announced yesterday by the event of the Bell plant did not go to Marietta.

U. S. Restricts Civilian Use Of Aluminum

War Needs Prohibit All Consumption Except Essential Items.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The War Production Board today earmarked the nation's entire supply of aluminum for war use, prohibiting all civilian use except for a handful of essential items.

Fifteen non-military uses were permitted, but most of them were restricted to low-grade aluminum. Other civilian consumption was banned, except for allocations which have been authorized specifically by the priorities division since last October 31.

The order, signed by War Production Director Donald M. Nelson, is effective immediately, and "continues in effect until revoked."

On the list of exceptions were replacements for worn-out or defective aluminum parts, and household or industrial machinery, provided that the old parts are returned by the consumer.

U. S. Mosquito Fleet Destroys New Jap Ship

Another Subic Raid Costs Enemy a 5000-Ton Vessel.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The sting of the United States "Mosquito Fleet" has cost the Japanese another 5,000-ton vessel in the very same Philippine bay where an enemy craft of similar size was sent to the bottom only last week.

The Navy reported today that Ensign George Cox, 27, skippered his tiny craft into Subic bay, past net and boom defenses and in the face of heavy fire from shore batteries and machineguns, and sent his torpedo home. The exact character of the sunken vessel was not disclosed.

Cox is a holder of the "Croix de Guerre," famous French military decoration.

Cox was awarded the medal during the summer of 1940 while a member of the American volunteer ambulance corps which served with the French army. The award was made for service under fire.

Cox, whose home address was given as Watertown, N. Y., is a member of the Naval Reserve and a native of Niagara Falls, N. Y. A former student at the University of Rochester and at Earlham College, he enrolled in the reserve in December, 1940. After a three-month course at the reserve school at Northwestern University he was commissioned an ensign and reported immediately for active duty.

Lieutenant Edward G. DeLong, named in the communiqué as participating in the attack, is a native of Springfield, S. D., 26 years old, and was appointed to the Naval Academy in June, 1932.

He entered small boat service in February, 1941. The following March he was given command of Motor Boat Submarine Chaser Division 7. He was detached from that duty in July, last year, and after a month's instruction reported for duty with a motor torpedo boat division and became squadron engineer.

Also participating in this raid was Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley, motor torpedo boat squadron commander, who only last week was commended for executing the first Subic bay attack.

Bulkeley, a Naval Academy graduate, lives in Long Island City, N. Y.

EVACUEE—Mrs. Cliff Farrar, the former Miss Louise Newton, of Atlanta, has been ordered to leave India, where her husband is with Standard Oil, it was disclosed here yesterday.

Standard Oil Orders Wives Out of India

Cable Received Here Hints at Next Big Battlefield.

The wives and children of hundreds of Standard Oil Company men have been ordered out of India, a move indicating that perhaps this vast land may become the next big battleground of the war.

This was disclosed in Atlanta yesterday in a cablegram to Mrs. Oscar Newton, widow of the governor of the sixth district of the Federal Reserve Bank, from her daughter, Mrs. Cliff Farrar, the former Miss Louise Newton.

Mrs. Newton, who lives with a son, Oscar Newton, in Omaha, Neb., but who is at present visiting at the Georgian Terrace hotel, said the cablegram from her daughter was brief.

"It just told me that the wives and children of the Standard Oil men in India had been ordered out of the country by the company. It probably indicates that perhaps India may become the next battlefield, but there was of course nothing of such a nature in the message. The cable was from the headquarters in Calcutta."

"Beyond saying that she planned to leave 'by the first available boat,' my daughter had no information."

Mrs. Newton said that her daughter, a graduate of Sophie Newcomb College, was married to Farrar, who comes from Dawson, Ga., in Ceylon in July, 1940.

"Cliff had been working for the company, mainly in India, for 10 years when Louise traveled all the way there to be married. Just after they were married, Cliff was sent to Rangoon, and did some work along the Burma road. Of course, Louise accompanied him."

"They left Rangoon last October. In the light of subsequent happenings, I thought they were very lucky to get out of that part of the world at that time. But now it seems that India, too, is going to be dangerous. Cliff, of course, will stay on the job in Calcutta, as far as I know."

Farrar is a graduate of the University of Georgia, where he was active in the glee club. He is 36 years old.

O'Connor Post Seen in Jeopardy

Washington advices said yesterday Marion A. (Bugs) O'Connor, found guilty of violating the Hatch act, might be discharged from his present post as head of the Georgia Office of the United States Employment Service, which is under jurisdiction of the Federal Security Administration.

Dismissal of O'Connor and J. E. B. Stewart, state director of the Unemployment Compensation Bureau, was recommended by the Civil Service Commission. However, since the Hatch act trial the state employment service, which O'Connor heads, has been taken over by the federal government.

Therefore, Ben T. Huie, State Labor Commissioner, has no jurisdiction over O'Connor.

Huie declined to discuss his next move until he has had time to study the decision of the Civil Service Commission more thoroughly.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 27, 1942.

Never Again

The Roberts commission's report on the Pearl Harbor debacle should serve, most effectively, to prevent any repetition of the obvious dereliction in duty on the part of high officers of Army and Navy. Never again will the United States armed forces be caught napping.

The report, in its deeper aspects, was gratifying. Gratifying in that it evidently is utterly frank, utterly honest and thoroughly inclusive. It places the blame where it belongs and makes no attempt to condone or whitewash the guilty.

Naturally, congress is already demanding punishment for the guilty, but this is probably rather superfluous. If the Army and Navy themselves, through regularly established methods of court-martial, do not deal justice, neither more nor less, to those who failed in duty, it will act totally contrary to every precedent and in violation of every code of conduct.

General Short and Admiral Kimmel, the two who bear the brunt of the blame, were evidently deeply tainted with that same brand of criminal overconfidence which marked so many in civilian life, before December 7. The ingrained belief, "It can't happen here," which was the motivating emotion among all the isolationists, the appeasers and the pacifists, was evidently present, in strong degree, among the men charged with the defense of Hawaii. They felt so secure in the prestige of the United States they failed to take simple precautions against attack. They ignored repeated warnings from Washington and went upon their ancient, routine way of mental complacency until the very moment when the blow fell.

The report indicates, too, another condition which should be quickly remedied. That is the age-old jealousy between the two ancient arms of service, the Army and the Navy. General Short did not inquire if the Navy was practicing certain fundamental precautions. He took it for granted they were. Admiral Kimmel, likewise, took it for granted that certain guard duties in the hands of the Army were in action, without inquiring. And neither arm was performing these essential duties.

Apparently the Army and Navy, at Pearl Harbor, were not on speaking terms.

This kind of thing must cease. The two arms of the service, together with the air force, must work in closest co-operation and in perfect harmony if we are to win the war. Modern combat requires almost miraculously exact co-ordination of all three branches, land, sea and air. With traditional jealousies between the officer personnel of the different services this co-ordination cannot be secured.

Let petty rivalries and service jealousies be forgotten, at least for the duration. We must all, in every service, civilians and fighters alike, work shoulder to shoulder, as brothers, if the victory is to be won.

There must be no more "taking for granted," anything, great or small, about performance of duty or co-operation for battle.

As for the congressional demand for unified command of the three branches, air, land and sea, is not that already achieved in the Pacific, where General Wavell is supreme commander of all Allied forces?

Opportunity for Older Men

President Roosevelt has signed a bill creating a limited service Marine Corps, to be used in guarding naval shore activities. The measure provides for enlistment of older men, preferably veterans of the service, in this corps in order that the regular Marines may be released for combat service.

The routine, yet important, duty of guarding naval activities ashore belongs to the Marine Corps. Yet it has been irksome, to the Marines most of all, to see trained men, young and vigorous, needed so urgently on American battlefronts, doing a task that almost any reasonably able-bodied man could perform.

On the other hand there are thousands of men, particularly veterans of former wars, who are almost weeping with desire to again serve their country, despite that they are past the age for active service.

This limited service Marine Corps opens the door to these older men, giving them opportunity to perform a vital service and at the same time release younger men for the more demanding of duties of combat.

While the Nation Sacrifices

While the nation is, for the most part cheerfully, accepting every sacrifice called for in the prosecution of the war, it is interesting to note what the members of congress, senators and representatives alike, have done in the saving of the nation's resources and in economizing for victory.

They are busy voting themselves pensions for life!

Unbelievable as it is, it is nevertheless true that, in December, both house and senate passed a bill providing that all members of either house shall receive a pension, its amount varying according to length of service, for the remainder of their earthly days. The bill was signed by the President yesterday.

The bill was first passed by the house, where it was sponsored by our own Representative Ramepek, of the fifth Georgia district. It was put through there, on a quiet day, with few members in attendance, in such manner that no one noticed the clause providing pensions for ex-congressmen. It was passed as an omnibus civil service bill, a bill to amend the Civil Service Retirement Act. No one drew attention, at that time, to the inclusion in one section of the bill of the words "legislative" and "elective officials."

When it came before the senate, Senators Byrd, of Virginia; Norris, of Nebraska, and a few others, drew attention to the hidden "joker" and protested. Nevertheless it passed the senate, 42 senators voting for it.

It is absurd for members of congress to describe themselves as "employees" of the government. They are, collectively, the government. To pension themselves is neither more nor less than a direct dip in the pockets of the taxpayers for their own financial enrichment.

Some have argued that a pensioned congressman would be less subject to outside pressure, would be freer in his vote and firmer in his stand for his own convictions, because he would be free of financial worry for his own future and for his family.

Such an argument, while it may carry some weight, is weak at best. Attempts at congressional pension laws have always been defeated in the past.

Its enactment now, when the nation is shouldering the greatest burden in history, is outrageous.

America has to pay tremendous tax bills. It has to pay the war bill, already above the hundred billion mark. America is accepting denials and sacrifices, for the winning of the war. America's sons are fighting and dying in Luzon and on the high seas. American workers are losing their jobs, so that factories of peace may be transformed into factories of war.

And congress votes itself pensions. That will be a pleasant thought as men and women of America pay the taxes they have saved by rigorous self-denial.

Georgia Editors Say:

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER

(From The Echols Press)

What will happen to America after the war? How will we meet our rising government debt, change our economy back to a peacetime basis and continue with our job of making America into the best place to live in the world?

Such problems are causing grave concern in the minds of many Americans at the present time. In a recent speech, Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president of the University of California, pointed out some facts that should reassure us on these points.

After the war, he said, "the land and its resources will still be here; all of the knowledge of mankind from the beginning of history to the present will still be ours. . . . Such adjustments as we may have to make in our social and economic scheme will not destroy our democracy as long as we preserve inviolate its central and fundamental principle of respect for and recognition of the dignity and worth of the individual."

That concept of the individual has always been one of the foundations of our freedom. Because of it we are able to work where we please, save our money or spend it, worship as we wish and enjoy all our other liberties. What ever happens in the months to come, we must remember that and let nothing destroy it.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WHEN WILL WAR END? WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Although the war is only some six weeks old with us many thoughtful people in and out of the government are already engaging in serious speculation as to the time it is likely to end.

Any attempt to set a date this early after our entry, of course, would be sheer guessing. Government officials and military authorities realize that the task ahead is so tremendous and the outlook so nebulous as to make any predictions hazardous. Nevertheless, by following intelligent lines of reasoning, in the light of our known objectives and the production goal set by the President, it is possible to arrive at certain plausible conclusions pointing to the ultimate victory we are confident of winning. It may be a degree of overconfidence on our part, gained from an unbroken record of achievement and unparalleled development of industrial resources, but our officials do have this certain confidence in the final outcome.

WHEN WE'RE ALL IN Barring some internal break-up in the Axis war machine, notably Germany, the best opinion of those in authority is that it will be in the summer or fall of next year before we can make a definite appraisal as to when things will end. By that time the full force of our contribution to the Allied war effort will begin to be felt and we should be able to lift the veil sufficiently to know whether it is to be a long war or one of subsequent early termination.

In other words, it will be another 18 months at least, under the normal course of events, before we can begin to think in intelligent terms of a set date for the final conclusion. We should know then whether the victory is immediately in sight or whether the conflict promises to spread out over a long period of years—five or even ten, some profess to see.

The possibility of a German internal collapse, something the country has repeatedly been warned against placing too much stock in, Brigadier General Frank E. Lowe, assistant to the Army chief of staff, recently made an observation which reflects the opinion of many military experts: "I have held that this war could blow up just as quick as it blew down," he said. He added, however, that it probably will be a war of attrition, like the last World War, with the outcome hinging on which side can hold out the longer.

General Lowe is one of those sharing the view that it will be midsummer or fall of 1943 before we can arrive at an intelligent conclusion.

DEPENDS ON RUSSIA The most important single factor entering into the time of the ultimate decision concerns events in Russia, it now appears. If the Soviet army is able to stand the Nazis off until the British and the Americans can throw the weight of their strength into the battle there, or establish a new front in Europe, the end unquestionably would come much earlier than otherwise.

Boosting Russian forces with a million or two million mechanized troops from the United States and Britain would be counted to definitely turn the tide. The last war blew up in a comparatively short time after we laid down 2,000,000 men in France. It could happen again, the experts say, if we were able to perform a similar mission now.

But we haven't the men, the equipment or the ships for such an undertaking at the present. It will be some months before the execution of anything so ambitious can get started, considering the demands of the war we have on our hands against the Axis in the Pacific. And, even under the best of conditions, it is no easy task to move and supply an ABE of that size.

The Russians continue to do exceedingly well in driving the Germans back. Some military leaders still see the possibility of the Nazi retreat developing into a rout, in which case the whole complexion of the war would be changed. There is little more reason to hope for as much, however, than there is for an internal Axis break-up.

SPRING TO PROVIDE TEST Crucial test of the Russian campaign is expected to come in the spring when the Germans open a new offensive. It may be safely assumed that we and the British will use the intervening months to send all equipment we can spare for meeting that thrust. Once a line can be stabilized in Russia to permit the even flow of our increasing supplies and equipment to them, the war will begin to take a different turn.

The time required for all of this figures in the calculations of General Lowe and the others as to when we may be able to appraise the situation more closely.

GERMANY IS KEYSTONE As for the war in the Pacific, the Japanese, while giving us plenty of trouble, are not expected to offer enough threat to divert our main focus from Europe. The war will not end, as the President and Prime Minister have said, until the root of the Axis powers—Germany—has been defeated. Once Hitler is beaten down, the Italian and Japanese will fall of their own weight.

On the basis of the best available information relative to our known plans and military program, the quickest end we can now see in sight, barring the unpredictable factors which are present in every war, is 1944. It might conceivably come in the closing months of next year if all of our plans run smoothly. The following spring would seem to offer a more conservative hope. Both possibilities are contingent on the way things go in Russia.

More Trolley Riders.

It seemed axiomatic that patronage of public city transportation methods should be on the increase when so many acquaintances are leaving the automobile at home and riding to work, these days, by street car, trackless trolley or bus. To save rubber on tires, of course, this supplies a problem for the company. They will have to operate their equipment so as to take care, as best they can, of the influx of paying customers. And, it is probable, in fact, that they, like all the rest of us, will face difficulties in securing additional equipment. It is unlikely they'll be able to get any.

For lots of the material that goes into a street car or trolley is needed for war production. And buses and trackless trolleys require rubber tires, too.

Which means we'll all have to remember that lots of strap hangers are now carrying 50,000 greater than it was before Pearl Harbor. It should result in considerable savings in rubber.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Spelvin on Profiteering NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—George Spelvin, American, called to Washington to state his position on the matter of profiteering, testified as follows:

Q. By Senator Nilly (Ind., Ind.) Please state your position on profiteering in the war.

A. By Mr. Spelvin. Well, senator, my position on that when you boil it all down into a nutshell without any ifs or ands why I say when your country is fighting the foe there is no excuse for any man to go to work and take advantage of a situation where everybody is supposed to be doing their bit and the boys behind the guns are depending on you to deliver the goods you can well imagine how they are going to feel if they hear somebody is getting rich just because they happened to have a certain kind of machinery or the government needs a certain kind of material and you stick them up for a fat profit why now it certainly doesn't seem to me—

Q. By Senator Nilly. In a word then, you believe—

A. By Mr. Spelvin. I positively do but senator, with all due respects, and I want to say nobody has a higher respect for our great American institutions, but you take like back there in 1932 and the President said we were engaged in a war on want, so we naturally all figured in such a war profiteering should be out but when you began to hear all this and that how this one got a soft job in Washington and then we finally got into this war and the first thing you know somebody quits a government job to be a lobbyist at $50,000 a crack so contractors can break the red tape, then it comes right down to a case of—

Q. By Senator Nilly. Well, Mr. Spelvin, I am afraid there are two sides to that question, because you take for example a case where labor makes certain demands and statistics show you have depressed areas and everything is so urgent that you simply have to jump in with both feet or the situation is likely to get out of hand, although I agree in principle up to the point where a public man's family isn't supposed to just stay idle if there is a chance to get ahead, so there is always a question whether that is profiteering on the people's predicament or—

A. By Mr. Spelvin. Yes, but, you take a case where—

Q. By Senator Nilly. But I think you have to distinguish—

A. By Mr. Spelvin. I know, senator, but with all due respects, in my humble opinion I think if a man has a plant and we will say he has been losing money six or eight years with taxes going right on and then you say he can't profit more than 6 per cent but he has to rebuild the plant first so it won't be good for his original business after the job is done and then you have to remodel it back but meantime the unions say if you work overtime you get time and a half, well there is a 50 per cent markup right there and a 100 per cent markup for Sundays and I don't see the difference between the regular working hours and the overtime hours or Sunday but nobody thinks the owner ought to get markups like that because his plant works overtime on Sundays and after all it is his investment and—

Q. By Senator Nilly. You mean—

With Georgia getting so many black marks in national statistics of various types, it is cheering to note that her "industrial deaths" dropped 7 per cent last year while the national rate—not so cheering—gained 8 per cent.

Persons speeding up production in the great industrial plants of other regions brought about the increase in fatalities. Georgia is not an industrial state in a big way.

Assignments have taken many through the last few years and I noted with interest the precautions taken by employers to prevent accidents.

There are two good reasons—altruistic and practical. No employer wants a man hurt from a purely humane standpoint. And no employer wants a man hurt or killed because it costs him money. In damage suits or compensation insurance. It's bad business.

As a boy I worked a few weeks in a rural sawmill. There were no safety devices. There were whirling saws which would take a leg off in a split second. There were open pits into which anybody might stumble. Death traps were all over the place. The boss and visiting loafer had sense enough to take care of himself—which wasn't always the case.

Machinery is guarded today. With every possible shield against a workman's losing a finger or an arm—or worse. On the walls are placards urging safety precautions.

But still mechanics are killed and injured.

"Toughest job we have," an employer told me, "is to persuade some workmen to protect themselves. If a safety device slows up their work—and cuts their pay—they ignore it. Or tear it off and throw it away."

Nerve of Women.

Friend who sells—or did sell—automobiles was chatting last week about women drivers. He thought they stacked up pretty well as compared to men.

"Some of them," he said, "remind me of that saying: 'Fools rush in where angels fear to tread.' And they get by with it."

"This was back in the grand old days of Model T's and dirt roads."

"Woman teacher of high standing came in and dickered with me for a car. And paid for it. She said she wanted it all fixed up and full of gas next day and she'd come by and get it when she and a woman friend came in with a jiny full of suitcases, which they loaded into the new car."

"Then this teacher suggested I get under the steering wheel and tell her how to start and stop and steer the machine."

"We're off to Washington, D. C., on our vacation," she explained.

"Don't know how to drive a car?" I asked. She said she'd never touched a steering wheel in her life. Neither had her companion.

"I moved heaven and earth to dissuade her, at the risk of losing a sale. The mud roads were full of bum drivers and dangerous even to an expert. But she said she'd seen thousands of morons driving cars and she could do anything a smart man could do. And she was starting for Washington, right now."

"I can learn as I go along, can't I?" she demanded. "Show me how to start this thing."

"So I took them out to a quiet road and explained throttle and brake and forward and reverse and abandoned them. They started north, wobbling a bit but going. While I prayed."

"Few days later a man who knew them said he'd met them on the road, somewhere in Virginia, just doing fine. And when my customer brought the car in for a grease job a couple of weeks later."

We're Saner Now.

Caller who is more observant than most folk and who takes time to think about things outside his job remarked yesterday that Americans—at least Atlantans—are not so hysterical as they were when we broke into World War No. 1.

"They're more businesslike about it," he commented. "They're buying defense bonds and they're volunteering for civilian defense work—though not as fast as they might."

"But we are not pulling parades, with flags flying and bands playing."

"And we are not urging that German shepherd dogs and dachshunds be killed because of their Teutonic ancestry. And nobody has suggested, as in the former big war, that sauerkraut be called Liberty cabbage."

"More than that, I haven't heard of any ferocious demand that everybody with a German name be locked up and all Japanese within our midst be shot at sunrise. There are no spy hunts—that I hear about."

"Personally, I'm quite ready to leave the spy hunting to the FBI."

"As a lover of music, I'm glad the Metropolitan hasn't banned German opera—as it was more or less forced back in 1917. To be consistent, they'd also have to cut out Italian opera. And that would mean no opera at all. Opera, I'll admit, is not a 'must' in public welfare, but it is important to many thousands—and it doesn't help the enemy. All the Italian operas I can think of were written before Mussolini was out of diapers."

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.
THE BURMA ROAD.

A high school boy in a rural district wrote me the other day, stating that he had been assigned a paper by his teacher in history on the Burma Road.

"We do not have sufficient reference books in our library to get as much information as I need for such a paper," he wrote. "Will you write something in your column about the Burma Road?"

Briefly, the road connects two very important cities, Rangoon and Kunming, a distance of 1,330 miles. It passes through Wangtun and Mandalay. Rangoon is situated 21 miles up the Irrawaddy river. Beyond the mouth of the river delta, the harbor at Rangoon is very large, caring for many ships, with ample wharfage and storage.

Rangoon is provided with rail and water routes to all of Burma. And I might add here that Burma is about the size of Texas, with a population three times that of Texas.

Since China lost her great part of cities to Japan, she has had to depend upon the Burma Road for her supplies from the outside world. The country traversed by this road is very rough and mountainous. It was built principally by Chinese coolie labor, though American aid is now at work to widen the road and pave it. The first part of the road, in Burma, passes through rich, level rice lands, with many villages along the way. From Mandalay, where the road turns eastward, the hills begin, and these hills are covered with teak forests, inhabited largely by hill tribes.

When China is reached, the road winds up mountainsides as high as 8,000 feet, descending sharply into valleys. There are several large cities along the route. There are 544 bridges on the road. The last reports available indicate that 1,600 trucks operate from Rangoon along the Burma Road, carrying a minimum of 10,000 tons of material into China. It is likely that this average is now greatly increased, due to the improved bridges and grades. The actual cost of transportation over this road is very great as compared with transportation costs in the United States.

Japan has found it very difficult to bomb the Burma Road. The two most important bridges, for example, are those crossing the Mekong and Salween rivers, both at the bottom of gorges 4,000 feet deep. Even so, one can but tremble to think what may happen any day as the clever Japanese bombers continue to seek strategic spots on the road for their deadly destruction.

Should Japan destroy the bridges along the Burma Road, China would then have to depend upon air transports via Chungking. Quite disturbing was the series of articles recently published in this country by Leland Stowe, in which he told of graft and racketeering on the part of Chinese officials in which much of the materials assigned to China over the Burma Road had been used for private gain.

The truth of the matter is that in the entire city police department. It seems that the public as well as Naval and Army authorities believe that a policeman handles men in uniform with complete regard for their personal safety and that they take a great deal of pleasure in subjecting them to physical punishment. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The truth of the matter is that when soldiers and sailors, on leave have a few drinks they lose all respect for laws which we, as policemen, represent. It is only natural for a man to defend himself with whatever means at his disposal when he is attacked and a person under the influence of intoxicants, possessed with a disrespect for law and order, presents a serious problem for only one man and sometimes any group of men to handle.

In all fairness to both the men in service and to the city police officers alike, it should be recognized that the major evil is not in the beating administered to or by a policeman but in the fact that they are forced to associate in an official capacity, with men in uniform of ill repute.

We recognize and appreciate the fact that soldiers, on leave after a strenuous week in camp, are entitled to some recreation and also we consider it deplorable that it is necessary for them to find it in places of this sort.

Also we have no desire to interfere with their pleasure but find it necessary, when called by some restaurant manager, some dance hall operator or some theater manager, who complains of disorderly conduct on the part of the soldiers or sailors, whichever the case may be, to arrest them for military authorities.

The only way this evil can successfully be eradicated is to provide some form of entertainment for our boys in uniform so they will not have to patronize dives to find recreation.

We have in the past and will in the future be required by virtue of our duty to investigate complaints of disorderly conduct in places where they might be found regardless of who may be involved.

We are not supermen, impervious to injury as most people seem to believe, and on several occasions we have been seriously injured and even killed by persons who they had arrested.

We feel that if the gentleman who wrote this letter is so well versed in methods of handling disorderly men, he should enlist his services with this department. He would be a great help in handling one of our greatest problems.

It seems that we, as policemen, are the only ones who do not know the vital spots on a soldier or sailor's body which would render him harmless and helpless. Anyone who could instruct us in these methods could do a great public service.

RAPS SUMNER WELLES

Editor, Constitution: The ludicrous and tragic failure at Rio is another defeat for the type of American diplomacy represented by Sumner Welles and his spats-cane-monocle appeasement policies.

Mr. Welles is entirely out of step with the America of today and with the world of today. His type of diplomacy is as passe as the horse and buggy appeared to be until the recent rubber shortage.

What will it gain us if we cheerfully make every sacrifice in money and blood, only to lose it in the field of diplomacy?

I think the great newspapers have a great public duty before them to insist that our missions be entrusted to someone who will truly represent our great secretary of state and the real American people.

Very sincerely,

City Ministers Asked To Unite In Brotherhood Fellowship, Co-operation, Monthly Meetings Proposed.

By Dr. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Dr. E. G. Mackay, superintendent of the 36 Methodist churches comprising the Atlanta First district, yesterday submitted to the Methodist Ministers' Association a proposal that all evangelical ministers in the city should unite in a brotherhood for fellowship and co-operation, with monthly meetings.

He cited that monthly Christian Council meetings are made up of both laymen and ministers, and that not more than one-third of the evangelical ministers attend the meetings at all. He further stated that much time is consumed in eating and attending to business of a routine nature, preventing the clerical fellowship and helpfulness that should come from a strictly brotherhood gathering, composed of ministers.

With more than 225 churches in Atlanta of the evangelical type, he suggested that a ministerial brotherhood in Atlanta would prove helpful in promoting the cause of evangelical religion.

J. M. Mount Is Successor To Sheriff Post

Chief Deputy To Finish Aldredge Term, Expiring 1944.

Chief Deputy J. M. Mount automatically succeeded J. C. Aldredge as sheriff of Fulton county upon the latter's death last night. He will complete the term, which expires December 31, 1944.

Sheriff Mount was selected to run on Aldredge's ticket by a group of Northside businessmen who had been asked by the late sheriff to choose a candidate for chief deputy. He formerly was assistant manager of the Atlanta branch of the Standard Pharmaceutical Corporation, of Baltimore.

Prior to that, he was with McRoberts Company, wholesale drugists.

Before entering the drug business, Mount was in the hardware business in Lancaster, Ky. He came to Atlanta from that city in 1916. He was born and reared in La Grange, Ky., where he was educated in the public schools.

Later, he took a business course in Louisville, and then went to Colgate College, Danville. For the last 20 years, he has been a steward at St. Mark Methodist church.

"I'm torn to pieces by Mr. Aldredge's death," Sheriff Mount said last night, "but I know his wishes and expect to adhere to them as much as possible."

U. F. Gunter Dies At His Residence

U. F. Gunter, associated with the Fulton county school board for the past nine years, died Sunday at his residence.

He formerly was connected with the Montezuma school board.

Gunter is survived by his wife, a sister, Mrs. Homer Castleberry, of Rome; three brothers, B. S. Gunter, of Doerun; A. J. Gunter, of Thalia, Texas, and Jim Gunter, of Griffin.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Jones Funeral Home, Alpharetta.

with whatever means at his disposal when he is attacked and a person under the influence of intoxicants, possessed with a disrespect for law and order, presents a serious problem for only one man and sometimes any group of men to handle.

In all fairness to both the men in service and to the city police officers alike, it should be recognized that the major evil is not in the beating administered to or by a policeman but in the fact that they are forced to associate in an official capacity, with men in uniform of ill repute.

We recognize and appreciate the fact that soldiers, on leave after a strenuous week in camp, are entitled to some recreation and also we consider it deplorable that it is necessary for them to find it in places of this sort.

Also we have no desire to interfere with their pleasure but find it necessary, when called by some restaurant manager, some dance hall operator or some theater manager, who complains of disorderly conduct on the part of the soldiers or sailors, whichever the case may be, to arrest them for military authorities.

The only way this evil can successfully be eradicated is to provide some form of entertainment for our boys in uniform so they will not have to patronize dives to find recreation.

We have in the past and will in the future be required by virtue of our duty to investigate complaints of disorderly conduct in places where they might be found regardless of who may be involved.

We are not supermen, impervious to injury as most people seem to believe, and on several occasions we have been seriously injured and even killed by persons who they had arrested.

We feel that if the gentleman who wrote this letter is so well versed in methods of handling disorderly men, he should enlist his services with this department. He would be a great help in handling one of our greatest problems.

It seems that we, as policemen, are the only ones who do not know the vital spots on a soldier or sailor's body which would render him harmless and helpless. Anyone who could instruct us in these methods could do a great public service.

Defense Priority On Tires Changed

Possession of a defense contract priority rating of 3-A or higher no longer carries with its automatic preference in tire rationing. Notice of the change in regulations was sent yesterday to all local tire rationing boards in Georgia by T. M. Forbes, state rationing officer.

"All purchases of new tires and tubes," he pointed out, "now must follow the usual procedure through the local rationing boards regardless of the fact that the vehicles involved are engaged in defense work."

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused by excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonsful in a half glass of milk. Cuts but little. Try a bottle. It must satisfy or money refunded. Filling Station Workers May Build Bombers

Slump in Gasoline and Oil Sales Forces Change in Future Plans.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

The man who used to fill your gas tank may soon be building bombing planes.

Filling station men who, in the past month, have seen their sales of gas and oil drop 25 per cent as people started leaving their cars at home to save tires, next month will try to figure out a plan by which they can turn their talents to national defense work.

Jimmy Robinson, president of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers, said yesterday that operators of service stations throughout the state have already begun to feel severely the indirect results of tire rationing, and that many men will have to find themselves jobs in other fields.

"Must Do Something." Robinson said, "and it seems to me the best thing we can do is to try to fit ourselves into the national defense program some way. Already I've gone back to closing my station at 7 o'clock at night, and am putting that time in with the state guards."

"But if things keep on as they are going, we've got to think about making a living. I have been talking with Marvin Cox, of the Office of Production Management, and he suggested that since most of us in this business are mechanically minded, it might be simple to train a lot of us as aircraft builders."

"We've got this big bomber plant going up at Marietta. It will probably take at least eight months to build. In that length of time, a lot of us who have been handling tools all our lives might be trained to step in there and start building bombers."

No definite plans have yet been made, Robinson said, but a training system will be discussed at a meeting of the directors of the Petroleum Retailers' Association here February 3, at which time some sort of state-wide plan may be worked out.

Causes Some Worry. Others who have lost business due to the tire rationing are the operators of downtown parking lots, who have noticed a decrease in the number of their customers, which, though not yet serious, is causing them some worry. Biggest decrease seems to be in the number of women who drive their cars to town shopping.

On the other side of the ledger the filling stations are still up to the filling stations and the parking lot has brought a rush of business to the Georgia Power Company. Officials yesterday said they are carrying 24 per cent more passengers now than this time last year, and every piece of rolling stock they have is on the street during the rush hours, even old one-man street cars long since retired from service.

They now have in service 272 trolley cars, 70 trackless trolleys and 116 motor buses. They have on order six 45-passenger buses for delivery in February, 13 44-passenger trackless trolleys for delivery in April, and 17 more 44-passenger trackless trolleys for delivery next fall. In addition they expect to order 19 more 45-passenger buses during the year. So far, they've had no great trouble getting new equipment.

Shoppers Help. Right now, officials said, shoppers can help by dodging the peak hours and riding between 9 and 4. Taxi rates have gone up. Where the taxi rider once paid 35 cents to go to two and one-half miles, with a 10-cent charge for every additional two-fifths of a mile, he now can ride only two miles for his 35 cents. Since taxi meters jump a dime at a time, it now costs 55 cents to ride the two and one-half miles he once rode for 35 cents.

Since the cab companies get no priorities on tires and must depend upon retreats to keep their cabs rolling, the advance in rates was made frankly in an effort to discourage taxi riding not absolutely necessary.

Author of 'One Red Rose Forever' Started Writing at Age of 12. By YOLANDE GWIN.

Mildred Jordan—pronounced Jordan, not "Jurden"—was honored at an autographing tea at Rich's yesterday afternoon, but she made the guests do all the autographing!

The attractive author of "One Red Rose Forever" turned the tables on Atlantans and had a dummy copy of the novel tucked under her arm and asked every guest to sign for her "collection."

Since her novel, now in its eighth printing, came off the press, the author has been on a personal appearance tour, and arrived here yesterday from Alabama. She leaves for South Carolina today.

Miss Jordan's home is in Reading, Pa.

Kept Busy at Home. Although writing is her favorite hobby, Miss Jordan says keeping house, being a wife, and rearing four children keep her hands too full for many frivolous pastimes.

"I began writing at the age of 12," she said. "My first novel's background was laid in the Hudson river country made so famous by Washington Irving. Of course I thought I could follow in his footsteps. When I finished it, I sent it to Anne Fellows Johnson, author of the 'Little Colonel' stories, and asked her opinion."

"She sent the story back, with a nice note telling me that it showed great promise, but to put it away and let it ripen like an apple. I have kept it hidden away all these years."

Background of Title. When asked about the meaning of the title of her book, she said: "It is the story of Baron Stiegel. Facts on his life gathered in my research revealed that he gave the town of Manheim, Pa., which he founded, property upon which to build a church. It was his request at his death that every June members of the church present one red rose to his oldest descendant. The custom never has ceased."

Mrs. J. Lee Bausher in private life, the author attended Northwestern University, and Wellesley College. A devotee of outdoor sports, she taught basketball to the Boys' Club at the famous Hull House in Chicago. In order to raise funds to send the boys to camp, she sold encyclopedias.

House Group Okays Bill For Rubber Experiment. WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The House Agricultural Committee approved today a bill to permit the Agriculture Department to undertake widespread development of the guayule plant as a domestic source of rubber.

Already approved in substantially the same form by the senate, the legislation would authorize the department to purchase for not more than $2,000,000 the physical properties and formulas of the Intercontinental Rubber Company, which has been experimenting with guayule in the Salinas valley, in California.

Fake Lightship Lures U. S. Ship To U-Boat Fate

Survivors Say Germans Posed as Beacon Before Attack.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Masquerading as a lightship to lure her prey closer for the kill, an enemy submarine shelled and torpedoed the American carrier Venore off the North Carolina coast early Saturday, leaving the ship floating on her side and 22 members of her 43-man crew unaccounted for.

Allen Harte, able-bodied seaman of Baltimore, Md., one of 21 survivors brought ashore at Norfolk by a vessel which picked them up after they had drifted for 38 hours in a lifeboat, told newsmen that "those boches are certainly smart... they fooled us completely."

"I was in the crow's nest on watch when we sighted a light," Harte related. "The light blinked in code that the vessel was a lightship. She told us to come over near her. She didn't fool us that time and when the second torpedo struck us we were ready for it as much as you can be ready for such a thing."

Some of the survivors said they saw the sea swamp a lifeboat carrying 19 men and saw a third lifeboat with two men in it but reported they were unable to go to the aid of the others because their own boat, with 21 aboard, was overloaded and shipping water.

The Venore, which was carrying 22,000 tons of ore, was the tanker Charles M. Black prior to her conversion to an ore carrier. She was owned by the Ore Steamship Company of New York.

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 26.—(AP) Fire destroyed 20 airplanes and a hangar at the Dallas Aviation school early today.

Eight of the ships were training craft and the remainder private planes, including one valued at $25,000.

British Fall Back 150 Miles in Desert; Bengasi Threatened

CAIRO, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Counter-driving Axis forces have shoved the British back about 150 miles in four days, it was acknowledged today, in a drifting battle of tanks which has not yet been fought to a decision but is a growing threat to Bengasi.

BatuPahat Lost As British Fall Back in Malaya

Singapore Defense Line Now 60 Miles North of Bastion.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The valiant but weary defenders of Singapore dropped back tonight along the west Malayan coast, abandoning the anchor city of Batu Pahat, but on other fronts they staunchly stood their ground against superior numbers of Japanese invaders.

The loss of Batu Pahat placed the Japanese less than 60 miles from the great British base of the entire southwest Pacific. The British said the town was lost after "severe fighting."

On the east coast the enemy was quiet and the imperials held their lines on the south bank of the Mersing river, 65 miles from Singapore. Perhaps the Japanese were awaiting reinforcements, because the Royal Air Force spotted a convoy of two merchant ships, escorted by naval forces, off Endau, some 20 miles farther north. Furious fighting raged near Kluang, on the central front, as the Japanese sought to drive farther south along the Central Malayan railroad. A Sikh battalion alone killed 460 invaders, some mounted on cycles, in that area, with but slight losses to themselves.

'Hot' Primary Ends In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—(AP) New Orleans' bitterest, but shortest and perhaps closest city Democratic primary in two decades came to a close tonight and the approximate 160,000 registered voters tomorrow will make their choice for mayor, a commission council and other municipal officers.

Mayor Robert S. Maestri, named to the office six years ago without the formality of a primary, has been strongly challenged on a multiplicity of issues by Hervey Radvitch, an attorney backed by the forces which helped elect Governor Sam H. Jones two years ago, and Shirley C. Wimberly, a former Huey P. Long advocate, who broke with the remnants of Long's political machine headed by Maestri.

All predicted victory in final rallies tonight.

German General Erwin Rommel's armored columns already have overrun Zouiet Msus and reached a point only about 70 miles southeast of the British-held port of Bengasi. The British have lost about 150 of the hard-earned desert miles.

No attempt was made here to minimize the gravity of the sudden turn, but neither was there any indication of panic.

It was accepted that Axis forces recently have been bolstered substantially by overseas reinforcements.

(The admiralty announced in London today that British submarines had picked off four more Axis ships in the Mediterranean.

Communications from the front were indefinite, but Rommel's forces evidently had swept into territory east of Bengasi, seizing roads and airdromes and, possibly, gasoline so recently used for British trains.

The terrain presents an admirable field for the Axis' plunging tank tactics. Rommel's pace has slowed down since the first two days and he is tugging now with the main body of troops and tanks so that the battlefield is spreading out.

British sources declared the battle could not develop much further without a conclusion, but the possibility of further withdrawals was indicated by the fact that there is no suitable defense area until well east of Bengasi.

Some observers predicted that Rommel would try to by-pass and get behind Bengasi, but others thought he was intent only on causing as much damage as possible to British preparations for renewing their westward drive.

Sugar Ration Of 12 Ounces A Week Seen

Some To Be Held Back for Canning, Says Henderson.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson said tonight that initial sugar rations may be restricted to no more than three-quarters of a pound a person a week.

Announcement was made last Saturday that rationing of sugar would begin some time in February. At that time, officials said each person's allowance would be about 50 pounds a year, or approximately a pound a week.

Henderson noted that some sugar would have to be held back early in the year to meet seasonal demands for home canning during the summer months and for the winter holidays.

OPA officials said they were not yet ready to disclose detailed plans for operation of the rationing system, although rationing books have been designed and printing already may have started.

Many Wholesalers Without Sugar

The pinch of the sugar shortage will probably be strongly felt by many Atlantans before the new quotas for February are available, wholesale dealers were agreed yesterday.

Many wholesalers had no sugar. Others had only a small supply left, and one, who sells mainly to restaurants and hotels, reported that some of his clients had only two days' supply and he had none to sell them.

On the whole, hotels and restaurants seemed destined to suffer the pangs of the sugar shortage first, for many stores dealing directly with the consuming public believed they had sufficient supplies on hand to finish the month.

More than 75 reservations have been made for the Atlanta League of Women Voters' annual luncheon at 12:30 tomorrow at the Georgian Terrace hotel, according to Mrs. James J. Salvage, league president. The luncheon will follow the annual meeting, which will begin at 10 o'clock.

Test Blackout Of 20 Blocks Ordered Here

Downtown Area Affected in Alarm for Training.

Citizens who neglect to register for civilian defense are holding up the training program and blocking Georgia's effort to prevent a repetition of what happened at Pearl Harbor, Charles J. Currie, head of civilian defense activities in Fulton county, declared yesterday as he addressed the Atlanta Rotary Club.

Meanwhile, Robert S. Troutman, chairman of the Citizens Defense Committee, charged that public apathy in civilian defense registration is centered principally in Atlanta and north Georgia.

In this connection, Troutman said incomplete returns from 71 counties showed a registration so far of only 500,490. The goal, he pointed out, is 500,000.

Other Areas Praised.

However, Troutman praised the co-operation of Georgia's coastal area and rural counties.

Fulton county's total registration was listed as only 12,500, although the downtown volunteer office at 246 Peachtree street has been registering men and women for the past five weeks.

Other developments in civilian defense were as follows:

1. General Eugene Oberdorfer, director of the first military district of Atlanta, ordered a demonstration blackout of some 20 blocks in the heart of the downtown area at 9 o'clock Thursday night. This test had the approval of General E. G. Peyton, head of Atlanta's defense activities.

2. Theo M. Forbes, state rationing administrator, returned from a meeting in Chicago and announced "new rationing is on the way" but said he could make no statement as to what commodities were destined for future rationing.

3. Dewey Johnson, superintendent of electrical affairs for Atlanta, said he would ask city council at its next meeting to approve an $8,000 appropriation to purchase air raid warning equipment, namely sirens.

Explaining that the test blackout for the 20 blocks in downtown Atlanta Thursday night was for the purpose of training blackout workers, Oberdorfer said the areas affected would be: Precinct 1 of Zone 1, Precinct 2 of Zone 1, Precinct 3 of Zone 4, Precinct 1 of Zone 3 and that portion of the railroad tracks and viaducts adjacent to these areas lying in Zone 2.

Concern Expressed.

Deeply concerned over the failure of Atlanta and Fulton county to snap out of their complacency over the civilian danger, Currie pleaded with Atlantans (1) to register and (2) to begin getting their homes prepared for a blackout.

"You can't do anything until you register and indicate what you can do most effectively," he said. "You must register first and then be trained."

"The thing for you to do is to play your part well. If you do that you won't have any right to criticize the organization of civilian defense."

Prepare Houses.

"Get your own house in order. Try to reduce the fire hazard. Prepare a blackout room and see if your cellar is strong enough to house your family in case a raid comes. See that the same formula is carried out in your business. Wherever you are at the time of the attack, that's where you've got to start playing ball."

Diamond-Studded Book Shown In Collection of Literary 'Gems'

Rare Volume on Display Here Has 13 'Sparklers' Riveted Into Front Cover as Part Sangorski Design.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Drop down any time during the next 10 days and browse over the books that Harry E. Davis, of Detroit, has brought to town. He has some gems there that are guaranteed to tingle all the nerves in a booklover's spine.

Gems? He has one rare old volume there with 13 clear diamonds riveted into the front cover, just as a part of the design.

Disregarding the diamonds, the book, itself, is a gem.

It's an anthology of rare old English verses; one of them, the famous "While a Prisoner," by James I. of Scotland; another, "Merciless Beauty," by that gifted writer of old, Geoffrey Chaucer; and the third, "The Nymph's Reply," by Elizabeth's boy friend and cloak-spreader, Walter Raleigh.

This interesting, diamond-studded volume was designed, lettered and illustrated by Alberto Sangorski, who spent years and years designing the pages, mulling over the illustrations, working them out in amazing detail, lettering in the rhymes with a perfection that could not be rivaled by any typesetting machine of today.

This book was printed in London in 1818 and Sangorski, that gifted genius for detail, died by drowning a year or so later.

Spend an hour or so gazing over the exquisite detail in this unequalled example of the Sangorski genius. There's not another book like it in the world. It is an original and never has been copied. It never will be.

Rivets Hold Diamonds.

The miniature painting in the title page shows the Tower of London where King James was incarcerated while he was collecting thoughts for his poem. The cover of the book is done in French Levant, a stout leather, and the diamonds in the cover design are held in this leather cover by rivets. The insides of the cover are lined with a rich, watered silk.

The book, of course, is quoted at a high price and Mr. Davis has no idea of selling it during his stay in Atlanta. It is just one of a number of rare and costly volumes he has gathered in his world travels—in quest of books.

Another trophy of the Davis hunts is a two-volume set of Robert Southey's "Roderick—The Last of the Goths." This, to all appearances, is a mere brace of leather-bound books printed in London in the early part of the last century.

Books "Fore-Edged."

But the amazing attraction in these two books is the fact that they are "fore-edged."

To a gatherer of old and rare books, "fore-edged" means that a deft painter has flicked the edges of the pages until their normal gilt disappears and on those edges, with infinite accuracy, has painted in a delicate scene. When the flicked edges are restored to their normal stance of a closed book, lying on a table, nothing can be seen but the ordinary gilt.

The "fore-edged" book was quite popular in the early days of the last century.

But, the remarkable innovation in the Davis volumes are that they are double-fore-edged. Flick the gilt edges one way and one picture appears—flick them another way and another picture appears.

U.S. Affirms Conviction of J. G. Glover

Former Chief of State Convict Force Loses Federal Plea.

Notice of affirmation of the conviction of J. C. (Bugs) Glover, former chief of the state's convict forces, on federal charges arising from alleged fraudulent construction of convict wardens' houses, was received here yesterday by the U. S. district attorney's office.

The federal circuit court of appeals, with a strongly worded dissent from Judge John R. Hutcheson, made the decision Saturday in New Orleans. Judges Rufus Foster and Edward L. Holmes voted to sustain the lower court.

Glover, who was tried from November 4 to December 3, 1940, before District Judge E. Marvin Underwood, and was sentenced to a year and a day in federal prison, will apply for a rehearing, his attorney, W. Paul Carpenter Sr., announced. He has 21 days within which to file the motion.

The majority opinion declared: "The lower court's denial of the motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence was not an abuse of discretion."

Judge Hutcheson, however, ruled: "This will not at all do. There are no common law crimes in the United States."

The defendant, now a traveling salesman operating in the Carolinas with Augusta headquarters, recently was indicted in Fulton superior court along with former Governor E. D. Rivers and 18 others on various fraud charges.

Japan Throws 400,000 Men Into Invasion

Expanded South Pacific Program Using 16 Divisions.

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 26. (AP)—The Japanese invader has thrown 400,000 men into the grandiose expansion program in the South Pacific, Chinese military leaders reported tonight.

They said these forces, of some 16 divisions, roughly were parceled out as follows:

Malaya: Five divisions, 125,000 men.

Philippines: Six divisions, 150,000 men.

Thailand (for action against Burma): Three divisions, 75,000 men.

French Indo-China: Two divisions, 50,000 men.

Supporting these troops are some 3,000 first line planes, of which 500 are in Malaya, the Chinese estimated.

Short, Kimmel Already Given Lower Ranks

Status at Time of Attack Was Ex-Officio, Capital Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Both General Walter C. Short and Admiral Husband E. Kimmel suffered a loss in rank, it was disclosed today, upon being relieved of their commands in the Pacific following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Short reverted to major general from lieutenant general, officials said, and Kimmel reverted to rear admiral.

These were the permanent ranks held by the two commanders, blamed in the Roberts commission report for "dereliction of duty."

Lieutenant general and admiral are ex-officio ranks, held by them only while they filled the posts of Hawaiian department commander and Pacific fleet commander, respectively.

Whether action would be taken by the War and Navy Departments against either remained undisclosed. The White House indicated today the decision was in the hands of Secretaries Stimson and Knox.

Meanwhile, Major General Frederick L. Martin, of the Army Air Forces, the third commander relieved, President Roosevelt's December 17 order, remained without a new military assignment although he was not mentioned in the Roberts report.

Martin commanded the Hawaiian Air Force and was subordinate to Short. He was displaced by Major General Clarence L. Tinker. Martin has returned to the continental United States as has Short and Kimmel.

Senate Group Approves Fund for 1,799 Vessels

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP) The Senate Naval Committee approved legislation today authorizing construction of 1,799 minor combat, auxiliary and patrol vessels of various unspecified types, at an estimated cost of $3,150,000,000.

The legislation, which already has passed the house, would also authorize an expenditure of $750,000,000 for construction of ship-building and ordnance manufacturing facilities.

Uncertain Destiny

Mary Accuses Linda Of Being in Love With Greg

SYNOPSIS. Linda Phillips, an attractive stenographer in Prairieville, has been engaged for four years to Kyle Norman, whose apparent inability to hold down a job has postponed their marriage several times. Linda craves excitement. She and Sally Barnes, a friend of school days, spend a week-end with Diane Frazier, a fashion artist in Chicago. At a cocktail party Linda meets Greg Hollister, a chemical engineer. They are attracted to each other instantly. Soon after her return home, Greg visits her. Sally and her husband, Hugh, a banker, give a dinner party for Linda and Greg. Linda is thrilled. Greg leaves the couple planning to be married. Linda is so much in love with Greg that when her parents disapprove of him she resigns her job and goes to Chicago to live with Diane. The day she arrives Greg, Diane and Linda attend a reception for wealthy Jerry Coleman and his bride, Brenda Jordan. There Linda meets Steve Baridon, a writer, who abandons his career because Brenda jilted him. Linda is alone with Greg for a while, but his attitude has changed. Reluctant by the next day Diane informs Linda that Greg doesn't love her, that he has left for South America and that it was understood he would marry Diane. Heartbroken, Linda rushes from the apartment. Presently Steve arrives. When he hears what has happened he searches for Linda and finds her in the family room. He tells Linda he has decided to continue writing a book on the family farm and offers her a job as secretary. Linda accepts and agrees to marry him to avoid scandal.

INSTALLMENT XLIII.

Mary eyed her soberly. "You're thinking about Greg Hollister," she said, and when Linda protested in surprise, Mary went on determinedly. "I'm not interfering, Linda. I know you and Steve are very happy together. You've been good to him and good for him, because he was sunk after Brenda broke their engagement. But, well, haven't you been just a wee bit in love with Greg all these months?"

"I—I was very much in love with Greg when he went away," Linda admitted, "and so I suppose I won't know how enduring that love really was until I see him again. Naturally," she Linda flushed, "Steve comes first."

"Of course," Mary said. "Of course."

Linda looked at her sharply. Was it possible, she wondered, that Mary's innocent face masked far more comprehension than her outward appearance warranted? How much did Steven's little sister really understand?

Greg Hollister had been in Chicago for over a week before Linda heard of him again, and then, on a morning in g. Diane telephoned, breathless with excitement. "Brenda and Jerry Coleman just flew back from Bermuda, and we're entertaining for Greg tonight in their new home. You and Steve simply must come."

"Brenda—" Linda experienced an odd pang of disappointment, and something else — something akin to fear. She hadn't seen the former model since the wedding reception nearly a year ago.

After their marriage, Brenda and her husband had spent the winter in Florida and then had gone to Bermuda and the West Indies for the summer. Now Diane's cool voice assured Linda that Steve's former sweetheart had returned. Linda was at a loss to explain this strange, new emotion she was experiencing. Why should she wish Brenda would never return to Chicago? Surely the wife of Jerry Coleman could mean nothing to her.

"I know you two will be meeting up with old friends, but surely your own happiness is a safeguard against any—shall we say—embarrassing situations?"

Linda had scarcely heard Diane, but she said quickly, "It's just that it might be—well, a trifle awkward."

"Oh, surely not! We want you to come, so please don't disappoint us. Dancing starts at 10."

After she had replaced the telephone on its base, Linda ran to stare at her reflection in the mirror. Seeing her flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes, she knew that the feeling for Greg which had been dormant for so long had flared again. Linda glanced at her wrist watch, and then, with the knowledge of a thousand things she must do that day, dashed off a hasty note to Steve and let the apartment.

Returning home hours later, her arms filled with boxes, Linda found Steve waiting, still wearing jodhpurs after a day in the country.

"I tried all day to get you, but you were out," he said, eyeing her packages.

"I dismissed Mary for the afternoon and spent my time in the beauty shop."

"But not all afternoon," he grinned, "considering these packages."

Linda touched them self-consciously. "Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Coleman are entertaining for Greg Hollister. We're invited."

"So," Steve said grimly. "We kill two birds with one stone."

"I don't know what you mean."

"As I remember," Steve said pleasantly, "the reason we entered into the blessed state of holy matrimony was because of Brenda and Greg and our unrequited love."

Now we all meet again, to prove—or try to prove—how happy and contented we are, when all the time—"Steve gripped her arm, forcing her to meet his eyes—"when all the time we're miserable. Isn't that right?"

"Linda wanted to protest—to cry out, "That isn't true; the past few months have been wonderful," but Steve's eyes were cold and remorseful, his manner foreboding.

"I suppose so," she murmured, and Steve released her so abruptly that she staggered back against the wall.

"Then let's get ready for the masquerade," Steve said brusquely. "We have no time to waste."

Never before had Linda given as much attention to her appearance as she did that night, and when at last Steve rapped discreetly at her door, she was waiting expectantly, a lovely vision in shimmering cloth of gold, her shoulders rising smooth and white, from the low-cut bodice. A single flower quivered in her copper curls, and her eyes pleaded for approval.

Steve stared at his wife without speaking, but Linda was unaware of the way his eyes lighted as they rested on her loveliness.

"Do I look the wife of a talented and successful author?" she demanded pertly, unconsciously happier because the temporary coolness which had existed between them seemed forgotten now.

"Linda," Steve began uncertainly, "I've been waiting for an opportunity to tell you—"

"And do you think Greg will recognize me as the little waitress from Prairieville?" Linda was smiling to herself. She did not see the eager look fade from Steve's face, for although her rising color or the way her nervous fingers tapped at the golden dress.

"Shall we go?" Steve asked, almost harshly, although Linda noticed a difference in his manner, she was too excited and carried away by her own thoughts to mention that fact until it was too late.

The beautiful new home of Brenda and Jerry Coleman was ablaze with lights, and the music of a famous orchestra drifted on the cool, autumn air. Walked into the mansion on Steve's arm, Linda was the center of all eyes. Gone was the shy, uncertain girl whose debut in Chicago had been very nearly disastrous. In her place was a self-assured young woman. This was Linda's triumph and she reveled in it.

As they made their way through the crowded foyer, Linda heard excitedly uttered whispers as person after person pointed them out. "There's Steven Baridon and his wife..." "Baridon, a writer you know—" "...certainly made

I think the American Legion should be in uniform all the time until the war ends. I'm not asking for any special favors. They can make me a colonel at the start and I'll work my way up.

P. S.: Don't overlook my war record. When the enemy attacked us in the rear I was the first to go to the front.

a name for himself as an author, and that lovely wife of his...

There was a sudden flurry in the brilliantly-lighted ballroom as Linda and Steve entered, and from a huddled group of young men, smart and assured in their well-cut dress clothes, Brenda Coleman emerged, making her way across the polished floor, a tall, blonde goddess in white.

"Steve! Steve, darling, this is a nice welcome home!"

She took his hand in both her own, smiling into his eyes, oblivious to Linda—his wife.

Only a year ago Linda Phillips might have stood by, awkward and ill at ease, as the scene was played before her eyes by one so adept at treachery as Brenda Coleman, but now Linda Baridon said smoothly, gracefully, her hand sliding through Steve's arm:

"Of course, Brenda, dear, I'm merely Steve's wife, but I'm here, too."

For Brenda the tableau was shattered by those words. The stately blonde could have overlooked shabby Linda Phillips, but Steve's wife was a new and spectacular Linda, with all eyes turned in her direction as if presuming an outright snub would be decidedly in Linda's favor.

All this went through Brenda's mind in a flash, and her glance in the other girl's direction was venomous, though her welcome was honey-sweet.

"But, of course, Linda, it's so nice to see you again. I understand you've introduced Steve to the simple, rustic mode of life. Your mode of life, I presume?"

Ex-Nazi Tells Of Persecution By the Gestapo

Ernst Winkler Returns to 'We, the People' To Continue Story.

Ernst Winkler, a German citizen and former captain in the Reich army, will return to "We, the People" to continue his story of four years in Nazi concentration camps, when Winkler joins Major General Robert M. Danford, United States Army, during the broadcast tonight at 9 o'clock over the Columbia network and WGST.

Major General Danford, chief of field artillery, United States Army, will tell how he helped write the lyrics of the famous and loved "Caisson Song." The officer will disclose that the marching song was composed on the spot where General Douglas MacArthur and his troops are now fighting in the Philippines.

L. Murray Jaeger is a private citizen in Brooklyn. But he is doing his part for the Army. Jaeger and his friends give "Happy Breakfast" for departing trainees in their neighborhood. They supply the soldier-to-be with cigarettes, money and even cab fare to the railroad station.

Two Victims David Inabinet Of Air Crash Gets 'Orders' Ask $500,000 From Knox

Mr. and Mrs. Littledale File Suits Against E.A.L. in N. Y.

Two persons injured in the crash of the Eastern Air Line sleeper plane near Morrow, Ga., in February of 1941 have filed suits for damages totaling $500,000.

The suits were brought in federal court in New York by Harold A. Littledale, assistant managing editor of the New York Times, and by Clara Savage Littledale, editor of Parents Magazine, his wife.

The complaints charged that the crash of the air liner, which took a toll of eight lives, was due to "carelessness, negligence, and recklessness," and that the giant air sleeper operated at extremely low altitude en route to Atlanta.

Mr. Littledale asked $350,000 for injuries which he claimed would permanently confine him to his bed and incapacitate him, and $50,000 for the loss of the companionship of his wife.

Mrs. Littledale is asking $100,000 damages.

Littledale, who suffered a severe back injury, was confined to a hospital here for several months after the accident. Mrs. Littledale also was hospitalized.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, also was injured in the crash and spent some time in a hospital here.

Information Asked On Police Conduct

Alderman G. Dan Bridges, police committee chairman, yesterday invited any person mistreated by police in making arrests to appear and file his complaint with the police committee at a meeting slated for 7:30 o'clock Thursday night.

His statement was made as the committee planned to try Supernumerary W. F. Stevens for the alleged beating of a sailor attached to the naval air base here Saturday, January 14.

"The police committee will not tolerate brutality or the use of excessive force in making arrests," Bridges said. "Our men should be protectors of the public rather than masters of citizens. We will welcome information regarding a disregard of this principle."

THIS IS RICH'S 75th ANNIVERSARY - 1867 - - 1942!

Camellia Show in Augusta To Attract Many Georgians

By SALLY FORTH.

THE OLD and historic Medical College building in Augusta will provide the perfect setting for the Sand Hills Garden Club's Camellia Show. The annual event is scheduled to take place on January 31 and February 1. Proceeds therefrom will be applied to war relief activities, and the exhibit of gorgeous camellias will attract flower lovers from every section of Georgia. Soldiers in uniform will be admitted to the show free of charge.

Among Augustans who grow and will exhibit blooms are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred S. Bourne, Mrs. W. B. White, Judge Henry Hammond, the Alonzo Boardmans and Mrs. Henry Cohen. Mrs. White specializes in camellias and has 89 varieties of fabulous beauty. Judge Hammond's camellias would be the envy of his friends, save for the fact he is so hospitable he invites them to stroll about his garden to enjoy them.

The Garden Club of America award for the most outstanding bloom in the Augusta Camellia Show is of particular interest. Mrs. White won it one year ago with a gorgeous Kurumasa measuring over six inches, and last year the award went to Fruitland Nurseries for the new and beautiful white Lotus camellia.

Widespread interest has been shown in the plants grown from seeds, for from these come the exciting new varieties being developed in this country. One of these was the "Elizabeth Fleming," named several years ago for Mrs. Alonzo Boardman by her husband. The Boardmans also won the Garden Club of America medal once for their outstanding Doucklaar bloom. Another camellia enthusiast who has developed an interesting collection of seedlings is Mrs. James Harper.

The award offered by Mrs. Sheffield Phelps, of Aiken, S. C., will claim interest. It is for amateurs—though not necessarily grown by the exhibitor—an exhibit of nine different named varieties, each typifying a class of the Berlese system.

Among the Sand Hills Garden Club members, Mrs. Boardman favors the "Hermes," Mrs. Henry Cohen the "Alba Plena," Miss Mary Lou Phinizy the "Rev John Bennett," and Alonzo Boardman the "Doucklaar." Mrs. Rodney Cohen developed the bright idea of offering the beautiful old Medical College building to the USO as a club for the duration. It has been accepted, and Mrs. Cohen has been tireless in her supervision of the extensive and nearly completed improvements. The Camellia show will be held there in each year.

For all the boys in the Army and Navy hospitals there are Red Cross workers, skilled and sympathetic, bringing a good cheer, sending word back to the folks at home. This service is vital to morale. Keep it going. Give to the Red Cross war relief campaign now.

WHEN two-week-old Henri Talmage Dobbs III and his mother, Ruth Reynolds Dobbs, reached their home on Spring Valley road from Emory hospital, Henri was the thirteenth baby to be put to sleep in the family. He has been in his mother's family over 40 years. He was born on January 13 at Emory, and 13 may prove his lucky number all through life. The white wicker bassinet was trimmed by his maternal grandmother whose children occupied the family hearth.

Mrs. George Reynolds, the grandmother, made a flounce out of yards of white point d'esprit, and posed it over a white satin ruffle draped around the bassinet. Blue and ribbon bows were tacked in just the right places on the flounce, and a hand-painted bow of blue ribbon adorned the foot of the bassinet.

Others who slept in the bassinet were Jane Reynolds Seydel, John and Scott Reynolds, aunt and uncle of the infant; his first cousins, Elizabeth and Scott Seydel, and several cousins who live in Chicago.

BACK IN the days when the Metropolitan Opera Company came to Atlanta every April for a whole week of opera and the city staged a perfect orgy of social gaieties in connection with its appearance, prominent among the visitors each year were Mr. and Mrs. Jose Pennino, of Havana, Cuba. And no more devoted music lovers and art patrons ever graced the brilliant horseshoe of boxes in the city auditorium.

In yesterday's mail came cards announcing the sad news of Mr. Pennino's passing on January 15 in Havana. The cards were issued by his widow, Mrs. Lita S. de Pennino, to whom a host of Atlanta friends will extend deepest sympathy while mourning the passing of her genial husband.

Directors Revive Scenes Of Rudolph Valentino In 'Merton of the Movies'

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—(INS.) We who belong to the newspaper fraternity know sob sisters went out with the bustle and the old-fashioned tandem for two. The newspaper woman today stands shoulder to shoulder with the men and takes the same tough assignments. But in the days when Diamond Jim Brady wore his "jools" and Lillian Russell charmed the tired businessmen—sob sisters were the thing. They covered murder assignments and wrote stories from the sentimental angle. Well, now Myrna Loy is going to play just such a character.

The title of Myrna's picture, appropriately enough, is "The Sob Sister," by Jack Pollexfen. Sam Marx is set to produce it for M-G-M and the locale is New York with all the characters who made up the town in those days. I understand Myrna's sob sister will be a little on the order of Nellie Bly, the gal who went around the world in 90 days.

Great idea of Sol Siegel's to "Revive" Rudolph Valentino, Pola Negri, Bebe Daniels, Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson and Agnes Ayres, all top stars of their day, for "Merton of the Movies." He will incorporate in the picture actual scenes from "The Sheik," "The Covered Wagon" and "The Affairs of Anatole"—terrific money-makers during the golden era, for who denies that was the golden era of our picture business? Eddie Albert and Susanna Foster are the stars of the new Merton movie and they'll work with actors who closely resemble the old-time favorites.

Tips on Most Food for the Money

By Ida Jean Kain.

Whether she knows it or not, the housewife is in defense work. It is her job to give her family the most protective foods for the least money. To do this, she must keep in mind this list: Milk, eggs, dark breads and cereals, vegetables and fruits. These foods are the richest sources of the so-called protective elements—vitamins, minerals and protein. They actually do protect against ill health.

Since milk protects against so many dietary deficiencies, it comes first. Compare cost with what it contributes and milk is the cheapest food on the market. I wish all grown-ups could get the habit of drinking their pint of milk a day, and that each child could have one quart of milk daily throughout the second year, and a minimum of three-fourths of a quart after that age.

Evaporated milk has the same food value as fresh milk and is much less expensive. It can be used as part of the daily ration to cut down the milk bill.

In the low cost menus, vegetables should not be allowed to average more than seven cents per pound. When fresh vegetables are prohibitively high, canned vegetables should be used. The modern process of canning preserves all the minerals and vitamins. The one thing to remember is that the water in which the vegetables have been canned must not be drained off and thrown away, for this liquid contains a large part of the protective value. If possible, the daily menus should furnish two other vegetables in addition to potatoes.

Every housewife must make a practice of using the green outer leaves of lettuce and cabbage. They are richer in vitamins than the white inner leaves. For salads, some of the very green vegetables should be chosen—escarole, watercress and parsley.

Don't stock up on vegetables too far in advance of the time you plan to use them. And even in buying vegetables for the same day, try to select the young green leaves and tender roots.

As you know, the richest sources of Vitamin C are the citrus fruits and tomatoes. The other citrus fruits are the most expensive to start with. But since it takes almost twice as much tomato juice as grapefruit or orange juice to furnish the same vitamin value, one is about as cheap as the other in the long run. Good supplementary sources of Vitamin C are raw cabbage, spinach and green pepper.

The cheapest sources of Vitamin B1 are the whole grain breads and cereals, the dark varieties. If the product is whole grain, the label will say so.

When meat or fish are too expensive for your daily menus, they should be restricted to three or four times a week and cheeses or legumes—dried beans, peas and lentils—used on the other days.

Eggs are listed among the protective foods and three to four per week should be allowed each child and each adult. Of course, those used in cooking may be counted.

Each member of the family needs an average of one-half pound of fat per week. This may be butter, or a substitute reinforced with Vitamin A. As additional protection, one teaspoon of cod liver oil or other fish oil should be used daily. And in the budget diet, each person is allowed one-half pound of sugar

Considerate Mother-in-Law Takes Occasional 'Vacations'

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I am a very unhappy wife. My mother-in-law has lived with us the past three or four years. I do not mind that for we get along fine and she is good to us. But you see, we would like to be together just by ourselves some time without her right under our nose. My husband works at night and I work during the day, so you see we only have the weekends together. Don't you think she would understand how I feel and that I want my husband and children to myself sometimes? She must think and realize that she was young once herself. Besides that, she has four other children and she could visit on weekends and divide her time between them. Do you think I am selfish in wishing for the few hours of the weekends?

UNHAPPY WIFE. I do not think you are selfish in wanting to be with your husband, and I think you should do everything you can to try to arrange it. I do not think your mother-in-law has any idea that her presence is displeasing to you, for she probably feels that she should share her son with you. On the other hand, I do think she should understand the situation and not monopolize every minute of his time. If you could be a bit diplomatic about the situation I think you could arrange for her to go away some weekend and visit some of the other children. Without making it seem too obvious and too planned, suggest that since your husband is home for the weekend with you, that it would be a grand opportunity for her to make a visit. Tell her that anytime during the week, you would be afraid to be in the house alone. You will have to be casual about it as you can to avoid suspicion.

CONDUCT AT A PARTY

Dear Dixie: I do not consider this a real problem, but I would like to know as soon as possible. When a boy hands a girl a cup of punch, how is the girl supposed to take it? The last party I went to I made a big mistake when the boy handed me the cup. I almost dropped it, and he said, "Why didn't you take it like you were supposed to?" I just laughed it off and said I couldn't. BROWN EYES. When the young man offers you the punch cup, it should be with the handle toward you. Take the cup by the handle with your right hand. In the case of your big "mistake," it is possible that the young man did not hand it to you in the correct way, and it made it awkward for you to take. You certainly handled the situation with an expert casualness and you should be complimented.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

Mother: "Jean draws well. If you'd ask her to draw this month's calendar on the board or do something of that sort, it might increase her confidence in herself." MY DAY: Defense Bonds Aid Post-War Economy

By Eleanor Roosevelt

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sunday.—After presiding at the national defense forum of the General Federation of Women's Clubs on Friday evening, I took a night plane for Fort Worth. I am delighted to find my daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, and the new grandson very well, and have had a wonderful time with her and the children. I am not, however, completely neglecting my work, for I have seen a number of people on questions dealing with national defense while here.

It is a good thing to be out in the field and to find out what people are doing. After all, in the Office of Civilian Defense in Washington, I sit in a nice little ivory tower and can make a great many plans. It is out in the community, however, that people do the things which bring them a sense of confidence and ability to meet attack on every front.

Mr. Rex Stout has sent me a delightful story, for which his sister is responsible. I am going to give it here, exactly as he has written it to me:

"Jim, the young man who used to sell me eggs, dropped in last evening and I asked him how he was making out in his new job at the tool factory. 'Fine,' he said. In spite of the expense of the baby he and his wife were saving money every week. 'I said, 'Of course you're buying defense bonds with it.' 'No,' he said. 'Guess I ought to, but with the baby to think of—such a responsibility, our first baby—we just feel we can't afford it until we've got maybe a thousand dollars put away—then we can start buying defense stamps every week.'"

And Jim isn't dumb by any means, he's a very intelligent young man. I wonder how many Americans have the same understanding he had—thinking that when they buy defense bonds or stamps, they are giving something, making a contribution? I explained to Jim that defense bonds are the safest investment in the world today—the best and safest way for people like him and his wife to save money."

Serve a Simple Snack To Add New Zest To Red Cross Knitting

By Sally Saver.

Even school girls are taking the war seriously nowadays, and are using every spare moment to do whatever comes to hand. Knitting is popular because it can be picked up at odd moments, between classes, at lunch time, and after school when friends gather for talking over the day's events. The two girls pictured are Marion Mullins and Shirley Pursell, students at Decatur Girls' High school, and they seem to derive much satisfaction from knitting warm sweaters for Red Cross war relief.

Knitters appreciate a bit of a snack and a refreshing drink, so when they gather at your house serve a simple tray as the one shown. The dainty little sandwiches are merely bread and butter, sprinkled with watercress; the drink is a well-chilled vegetable juice cocktail. Make the tray this way:

Refreshment Tray.

White bread (enriched).

Butter, softened.

Watercress.

Chilled vegetable juice cocktail (canned).

Slice bread very thin and cut in 3-inch squares. Spread each square with softened butter, roll up diagonally and put a small sprig of watercress in each end. Watercress is one of the richest sources of several important vitamins and minerals, and should be eaten, every leaf, every time you can get it. The vegetable juice cocktail can be chilled in the cans or poured over ice cubes.

Another sandwich idea is this:

Corned Beef and Tomato Toast.

This is a good way of using up scraps of home cooked or canned corned beef. Melt two tablespoons butter or margarine and add one tablespoon minced onion and a little chopped parsley. Cover and cook slowly for two or three minutes, then stir in two cups canned tomatoes, one-half teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt. Cook until boiling, then add from one-half to one cupful of corned beef cut into small pieces. Have ready two slices of bread, untoasted side up, on hot plates, pour over a generous spoonful of the filling, cover with the second slice of toast, and pour another spoonful of the filling over the top. Serve at once.

A Good Digestive System Begins in the Mouth

By Dr. William Brady.

Number 1 of the Little Lessons in the Ways of Health series, as well as No. 1 of the 7 Keys to Vite is Save Your Teeth. I chose that as the subject and title for the booklet (67 pages), not by chance, but because it is my considered opinion that conservation of the teeth is fundamental for the attainment of health, vity and longevity.

Essential for preservation of the teeth are (1) use of jaws, gums and a full complement of teeth (none missing) for mastication of natural food, (2) good nutrition, and (3) regular care and advice of your dentist.

I believe there is but one way to keep your teeth clean, and that is by having them cleaned, if necessary, scaled and polished, regularly by your dentist. Periodic inspection, cleaning, and treatment of any minute fissures or beginning cavities the dentist may find, is indispensable for the preservation of the teeth.

Nutrition has a good deal to do with the development and preservation of sound, even teeth. It is well recognized that the diet of the expectant mother determines the quality of teeth her baby will have. On this scientific basis it is fair to say that conservation of the teeth must begin before you are born.

If this makes the question of saving your teeth resemble the chicken or egg controversy, you just don't understand. Let me quote an elementary health principle:

Digestion begins in the mouth.

Personal To Fat Girls

Now you may slim down your face and figure without starvation dieting or back-breaking exercises. Just eat sensibly and take Marmola under the conditions and according to directions on the package. Marmola Tablets have been sold to the public for more than thirty years. More than twenty million boxes have been distributed during this period. Marmola is not a cure-all. Marmola is only for adult persons whose fatness is caused by a thyroid deficiency (hypothyroidism) but who are otherwise normal and healthy. We do not make any diagnosis as to the cause of your fatness. Why not try to lose those ugly, uncomfortable pounds the Marmola way? Get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

and salivary digestion continues in the stomach. Good digestion begins with mastication of the food. Good digestion in the stomach is conditioned by and dependent on changes which occur in mastication and the action of the saliva, for these changes determine the character and quality of the gastric juice which will be secreted. . . . There you are!

If your masticating equipment is not as efficient as it should be, the very best health investment you can make is to seek the necessary dental service to enable you to digest the sort of food required to maintain good nutrition, good health, vigor, longevity, physical efficiency and morale.

IF YOUR BABY NEEDS MORE MILK

Mothers find that one of the best ways to give baby all the milk he needs is to make some of it each day into tempting rennet-custards. Children love to eat them with a spoon, and thus get more of the valuable nutrition which milk supplies so generously.

You can make these eggless, non-cooked custards in a minute with "Junket" Rennet Tablets—unsweetened, add sugar and flavor to taste. The rennet enzyme makes them digest more readily than plain milk. Widely recommended by doctors for babies and children. At your grocer's and druggist's.

Older children enjoy the flavors and colors of rennet-custards made with "Junket" Rennet Powder. Easier and quicker. At grocer's.

Baby Size—10¢—Made of new Byrene Plastic fabric; overall size; crumb pocket. Easy to keep clean, spot-proof. Pink or blue. Send 1¢ and front of "Junket" Rennet Powder or Tablet package to "The Junket Folks," Chr. Hansen's Laboratory, Inc., Dept. 1129, Little Falls, N. Y.

ALCOHOLISM CONQUERED

The sole purpose of the White Cross Treatment is to remove the alcoholic accumulation from the glands of the body, after which a positive aversion is created. When this is accomplished no will-power is necessary to fight a condition that no longer exists.

'Paris Calling,' Capitol Film, Is Story of Anti-Nazi Agents

By LEE ROGERS.

When Hollywood first made films about the work of underground agents in occupied Europe, the movie public refused to regard them as based on true conditions, but subsequent news has proved the existence of such organizations working against the Nazis. Thus popularity of such films has leaped.

"Paris Calling" is a melodramatic thriller, concerned with the great dramatic risks run by such a group of patriotic Frenchmen to supply vital information to the British commandos. It opened yesterday at the Capitol, full of excitement.

In the cast are Elizabeth Bergner, a topnotch French actress who escaped the Nazis and came to Hollywood; Gale Sondergaard, Randolph Scott and Basil Rathbone. The film is a series of climactical events, so widespread, so dramatic and so melodramatic that acting is almost overlooked in the tension.

Miss Bergner, in her first American movie, is a French spy who was engaged, before the invasion, to Basil Rathbone, the Quisling of France. Volunteering with the underground movement, she is told to get vital information from Rathbone, thus to prove she is not spying for him. Using a piano-music code, the information is wireless England from a cafe, run by Gale Sondergaard, under constant Nazi guard. The romance is between Scott, an American sailor, and Miss Baker, who hides him from the secret police.

All in The Game
BY JACK TROY

The Kid Had Spirit BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 26.—Little Rock, Ark., once attracted 165,000 fans during a Southern League season. And there was no Sunday baseball or night games. Atlanta one season drew 285,000 customers without either Sunday baseball or nocturnal contests.

The game wasn't as dignified then as it is now. Norman Elberfeld was managing Little Rock. He was always getting in trouble with rival players and the umpires. In the 1920 season in question the Little Rock club paid out more than $600 in fines for the kid alone.

One day Elberfeld was scheduled to pay Steamboat Johnson $25 before he could appear on the field. The fiery kid counted out the $25 in pennies on home plate and then kicked each neatly piled stack into the dirt. "That'll cost you $50 more!" Steamboat Johnson roared.

The fans ate it up. "We'll pay your fine, kid!" they yelled by way of encouragement, and took up a collection to raise the money. Next day the Allens turned the fans away. There wasn't enough room in the park to hold them.

Baseball in the good old days had more color, more action; and yet it wasn't a rowdy spectacle. As a game, baseball originally wasn't designed to be dignified. And as a national spectacle, it will die if more of the Larry MacPhail tactics aren't adopted.

Bums Were Different An entire nation adopted Dem Bums because they were different. MacPhail's National League champions were a swashbuckling, devil-may-care outfit. They played the game recklessly and never backed out. Even mild-mannered, gentlemanly Whitlow Wyatt, the Buchanan (Ga.) farmer, would snap a rival's head off if he spoke out of turn, as attest the near-fight with Joe DiMaggio in the World Series.

Almost every man, woman and child in America interested in baseball wanted Dem Bums to beat the arrogant, self-satisfied New York Yankees. And a good thing for baseball it would have been if the Durocher Dandies could have flown a world's championship pennant from the center-field flagpole at Ebbetts Field.

Baseball sorely needs more of the spirit of the Elberfelds and Dem Bums.

Southern League directors have talked it over before and then quietly have done nothing about it. This time, however, they realize that something must be done in view of unusual times. They realize fans are impatient, desire action.

And so it is planned in the Southern League to speed up the game. It is planned to dispense with the old ground rules ceremony prior to the game. This is one of the time-honored travesties of baseball.

Another ridiculous feature is the multiple huddles around the pitcher's mound. The umpires may be asked to stop most of these by awarding bases on balls if play isn't resumed.

Base coaches will be asked to take their stations with alacrity and to drop the Stenpenfitch style of movement. These are a few of the plans club owners have in mind for making the game more attractive to fans.

Hustle Is Cure-All It may be that baseball will revert back to other days and have the pitcher one of the first on the field ready to play ball. Used to be the pitcher led the charge, took half a dozen warm-up pitches and the game got under way. Nowadays the pitcher has been last and usually he has walked out to the mound in a manner reminiscent of a condemned man trudging the last long mile.

Baseball basically is a great athletic event. It is one of the great games for conditioning athletes. But it is hardly an inspiration when it drags, when players fail to hustle, and when colorful action is shelved for dignity.

Baseball can be played as Dem Bums play it and still be a fine attraction for men, women and children. The fact that MacPhail drew a million and a half people to Ebbetts Field last year is proof enough.

Sometimes they held picnics on the grounds. The more democratic followers on hot days shed to their undershirts

Georgia Votes Butts Longer Contract

Athletic Board Authorizes Extension at Annual Athens Meet.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 26.—Georgia's athletic board, at its annual meeting here today, authorized an extension of Coach Wallace Butts' contract, which expires at the end of this year, and voted to continue its present athletic program "unless or until the United States government requests otherwise."

Terms of the extension of Coach Butts' contract was left up to the board's executive committee, which will hold a meeting after it has conferred with the head man. Coach Butts was given a three-year contract beginning in 1940, the first football coach ever to get one at Georgia. All assistant coaches were re-elected for another year. The board expressed its appreciation to each member of the staff for the fine work during the past year, which saw Georgia in a bowl for the first time in history.

TEAMS LOSE SENIORS. A resolution to continue minor sports was passed unanimously, with the exception of the football team, which will be minus all senior members for the latter part of their schedules, since seniors will graduate on May 2 this year.

The resolution said: "The board of directors of the Athletic Association of the University of Georgia is in favor of continuing the present athletic program until, in its opinion, circumstances arising out of national or international conditions make it inadvisable or undesirable to carry on a normal athletic program, or unless or until the United States government requests otherwise."

There had been some doubt about whether the sports program now carried on would be retained here due to speeding up of the educational program because of the war.

Dr. W. O. Payne, athletic director, said there might be a few minor changes made here and there, but no sport will be cancelled unless future developments make it necessary to take such step.

BELL ADDED. The executive committee which will decide on the length of extension for Coach Butts' contract and the salary terms, is composed of President Harmon W. Caldwell; Dr. Payne, J. D. Bolton, treasurer of the university; George Woodruff, of Columbus, and Robert E. Trotman, of Atlanta.

Miller Bell, of Milledgeville, was elected a member of the athletic board. He succeeds no one, the board having been increased to give him a seat.

Ladies' Night Contests Cut To 2 a Week

Twin Bill Slated April 12; Children's Admission Prices Reduced.

By JACK TROY, Constitution Sports Editor.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 26.—There won't be as many ladies' nights and it's going to cost old John Fan just a little bit more to see the games—on account of war's expense—but it will be worth every bit of it if 1942 baseball is as streamlined as Southern League directors insist it will be.

Major Trammell Scott, league president, sounded the keynote at the annual meeting for the adoption of the playing schedule today. It was a closed meeting but the word got out that the Southern Association prexy made a stirring appeal to all club owners for greater action on the field and outlined a few things the league plans in an effort to present streamlined baseball, unlimited.

In the face of rising prices—and don't forget what Sherman said about war—the Atlanta Baseball Corporation, which formerly absorbed the tax, has been forced to follow the example of many other clubs and add the difference to tickets for 1942 games.

TAX ADDED ON. The new schedule of prices includes 55 cents for bleachers, 85 cents for grandstand and $1.10 for box seats. Formerly the scale was 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.

On the other hand, there is a lower scale for children's tickets. Where youngsters up to 12 formerly paid 15 and 30 cents for bleachers and grandstand tickets, they'll be admitted for 10 and 15 cents in '42.

Used to be youngsters between 12 to 18 had to pay full price, but now under a high school ticket plan the cost will be 20 cents for bleachers and 35 cents for grandstand, including tax. It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.

The Atlanta club, which last year had special permission to hold three late night games a week, was ordered by the league to observe the regular rule of two nights a week.

TWO LADIES' NIGHTS. President Earl Mann announced that ladies' nights would be held on Tuesdays and Fridays. Night games at both places will be played on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, and on Mondays whenever games are scheduled. In most cases Monday will be an off day.

"We had no choice about ladies' nights," President Mann declared. "The league thinks it best that we go back to two nights a week."

Gates will be thrown open to soldiers in uniform in Atlanta. Not a dime will be charged the men in the service, and if the Atlanta club can obtain the consent of the Internal Revenue Department, the tax also will be waived. It is the hope of President Mann that they can be admitted absolutely free.

RED CROSS BENEFITS. Each club in the Southern League will play one benefit game for the Red Cross, with all proceeds of that game being turned over.

The league decided also that any designated night game may be started any time after 5 o'clock and the lights turned on when necessary. On a hot night, new daylight-saving time numerous twilight games will be held during the summer, it is anticipated.

The Atlanta club, hopeful of getting off to a good start, has been encouraged by league approval of a double-header with

Benny Hogan Takes San Francisco Open

Sam Snead Finishes Strong for Second Money, Ahead of Little and Metz.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—(P)—In semi-darkness and miserable playing conditions, Benny Hogan charged home like the champion he is to win the $5,000 San Francisco open golf tournament today with a 72-hole total of 279—nine under par.

Last to start and finish, Hogan hit the California club course for a one-under-par 71 on the final round to win top money of $1,000. It was good enough to give him a three-shot edge over his closest rival, Sam Snead, who roared home with two par-smashing rounds today for a total 282.

Snead, after a 74 for the first round, was counted out of the running, but he followed that with a 71 and then carded 69-68 for his final efforts to take second-place money of $750.

Other leaders finished as follows: Lawson Little, 284; Dick Metz, 285; Al Zimmerman, Lloyd Mangrum and Harry Bassler all 286.

Soldiers To See Mat Show Free

Promoter Abe Simon last night announced that soldiers will be admitted free to his wrestling show Wednesday night at Sports Arena.

The main bout will bring together Dorv Roche, the Scranton coal miner, and Bad Boy Brown, Chicago terror.

Masters' Proceeds To Benefit Soldiers

Trial at Albany Delayed 2 Days

Trial of the second annual Quail Championship at Albany will be delayed two days, it was announced last night by Major Trammell Scott. Originally scheduled to begin Monday, the bird dog classic will open next Wednesday. The postponement was made because of the Free-All at Shuqualak, which will run through Saturday, making it impracticable for some of the entries to return to Albany by Monday morning.

Instead of following the Championship the Southern Amateur will be run Monday and Tuesday, with dogs competing in the Members' Derby and All-Age.

Meeting Tonight At Druid Hills

Big doin's are slated at Druid Hills Golf Club tonight. The annual meeting and election of officers will be held, then a buffet supper and dance. The program starts at 6:30.

Jim Wilson is president of the club. The club plans to go ahead with the Dogwood Invitation tournament in April, but final arrangements will be discussed tonight. The club expects to give defense bonds, instead of trophies, for prizes.

Yarborough Wins Physical Contest

Cadet Yarborough was selected as "Mr. G. M. A. of 1942" Saturday night at the College Park gym. Yarborough and Wilkins tying with the best all-round body development, with Cadets File and Hernandez running second and third, respectively.

Cadet Laymon won top honors in the "best chest" contest. Cadets Tamper and Wilkins were next in order. Yarborough was voted as having the best arm development, with Cadet Edwards second, and Cadet Brown third. First place honors in the best abdomen division went to Edwards with Tamper and Wilkins tying for second place. Cadets File and Dallas tied for third place.

Judges were Charlie Dortch and Shi Dunn. The competitions were held in keeping with a state-wide program headed by Karo Whitfield to promote athletic preparedness in Georgia high schools.

The Metropolitan women's golfers will play on Wednesday at the Key Club. Prizes will be awarded to the winners of each division for best net score on "blind nine holes."

There will also be a special event one blind hole, not to be announced until after the game. Mrs. J. E. Varela will be in charge of the day's activity. All women in Atlanta who desire to play golf are invited to join this group.

George Colasakis chalked up 11 points for Ahepa. Other outstanding players on the winners were Skundale and Economy. For the first time this year the Dental College Golds found the range of the basket in the early moments of the game and were able to hammer at will to score a 43-to-20 victory.

Forrest 5 and 10, playing their second game in league competition, managed to take a 5 point decision over the Sultanic Club for their first loop triumph. No games will be staged in the City League tonight and the games originally planned for this time will be played on Wednesday.

Kirby, Tainter Tie for Second In Qualifying

Garman Wins Miami Medal at 78; Suggs Fires 83.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.

MIAMI, Jan. 26.—A newcomer popped into the spotlight today and won the qualifying medal with a fine 78 in the Miami-Biltmore tournament. Mary Jane Garman is the name, from Sarasota, Fla.

She toured the first nine holes in 35, but ran into some difficulty on the back nine and required 43 strokes. She wasn't satisfied with this score, however, and afterwards she wished she could have been somewhat steadier in scoring.

I came up to the 18th green with an 8-foot putt for a birdie 4, but took a 5 for a 79. It is a funny thing about this qualifying business. Year before last and the year before that I needed one less stroke to win the medal. The type of golf I played this morning was a bit puzzling, for I went out in a terrible 42 and came back in a 37, not much consistency there.

I was getting along all right up to the 6th hole, where I went one over par and then I ran into a string of fives and wound up with a beautiful six on the 9th.

The ball was going all right, but the last five putts I hit rimmed the cup and stayed out. These greens will really fool you if you don't know them. For instance, you will have a putt which you would believe was due to break one way or the other but my average wasn't so good, for none of mine broke.

Louise Suggs didn't hit her usual pace and slipped to an 83, taking a 40-43. She had trouble with the par 4 16th, where she hit her tee shot into the water and took a bad seven.

Georgia Tainter shot a 79 also, but she complained about her putts not dropping.

Purples Battle Tech Hi Tonight

THOSE ACTIVE CRIPPLES—Clint Castleberry (left) and Lester (Beanpole) Hughes, the only two first stringers back from Boys' High's Big Six Champions of 1941, both have injured shoulders which hamper their play, but it isn't keeping them from sparking Coach Dwight Keith's Purple Hurricane along its unbeaten way in the league this year. Castleberry, All-G. I. A. A. performer in three sports, shot 20 points against Marist last week. The league leader's hopes rest on this pair against a second-place Tech High in their game at Grady court tonight.

Smithies Set To Fight for League Lead

G. M. A. Plays Typists in College Park Today.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.
The hullabaloo of the leather-lunged high schoolers will pour forth tonight at Grady gym when a couple of six-year-olds in a cap pistol fight. For the Tech High Smithies, running along smoothly in second place in the Big Six cage league, will be out to give the loop-pacing Boys' High five its first defeat of the league season and thus pull into a tie for the leadership.

Fans here long ago learned any Boys' High-Tech High clash could and would instigate more bedlam than a three-alarm fire, but when these two go into battle with a league lead at stake it is a foregone conclusion it will start more fireworks than a torch thrown into the Roman candles box. So that is the way things stand tonight with the shooting slated to begin at 7:45 o'clock to give fans who get through the night's torpeding without broken limbs a chance to get to the Celtic-Eagle game at the auditorium on time.

The G. M. A.-Canton tilt has been postponed until a later date, but Commercial will journey to College Park to engage G. M. A. in another league tilt this afternoon at 4:15. The Cadets are strong from having downed the strong for the Phillips and Florence M. Gallagher, were married here Saturday. Both are 24.

POLIO VICTIM—Barbara Johnson, of Cincinnati Children's Hospital, a laboratory technician, was stricken with infantile paralysis during last summer's epidemics. She is now at the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, and she declares that she knows that those who treat the disease and those who become its victims, know the real meaning of infantile paralysis. She has been both and she realizes the handicaps which the crippling disease places upon those it attacks. Miss Johnson is shown with her nurse, Marvel Samuelson.

Foundation Patient Understands Both—Studied, Contracted It.

(Barbara M. Johnson is the first research worker in the world who has been stricken with the disease and who has become its victims. For ten years before June, 1941, she was a laboratory technician in Cincinnati, Ohio. On a visit to her parents in Buffalo, N. Y., she was stricken with the disease. Both her legs and her left arm were affected. She was sent to Georgia Warm Springs Foundation last September as the guest of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which had financed much of her laboratory work. She has written this message in behalf of the campaign of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.)

A voluntary increase from 36 hours to 48 hours weekly on this production was agreed to a year ago by the prisoners. Seven defense articles are being produced at greater than double last year's rate.

Biddle will be accompanied by James V. Bennett, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, and Representative Louis C. Rabaut, of Michigan, Warden Joseph Sanford will conduct them through.

Planes May Settle Giant-Dodger Row

Mel Ott Arrives in Gotham To Sign Contract and Receive Baseball Writers' Award.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(P)—Mel Ott, new manager of the New York Giants, conferred with President Horace Stoneham today and settled the tangle over whether the Giants would go to Cuba for two exhibition games they have scheduled with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"If we can make arrangements to go by plane, we'll make the trip," said Ott, "but I wouldn't like to go on a boat."

Stoneham added that the Giants would immediately begin efforts to assure air transportation for the series, which is set for February 28 and March 1.

The famous home run slugger, who never was known to quaver in front of any pitcher, perspired pitifully as, in the line of duty, he faced a roomful of reporters at a press conference. But he promised he would not lose courage and leave town before the dinner of the New York baseball writers Sunday night, when he is to receive a plaque for "meritorious service to baseball over a long period of years."

This, he said, was his reason for coming. However, he acknowledged that he had some other business to do during the coming week. He must select a third base coach, appoint a captain to succeed himself, sign his own contract and confer on the players' contracts, among other things.

Ott didn't know until today about the controversy that has been raging in New York between the Giants and Dodgers over their exhibition games. Two of the Giants' officials, Vice President Leo Bondy and Secretary Eddie Brannick, had asserted they did not think it was advisable, or even safe, to take a club to Havana, where the Dodgers are going to train.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 26.—(P)—Joe Justice, former Rollins College grid star and Tar freshman coach last season, today completed plans to take over the coaching job at University of Tampa.
